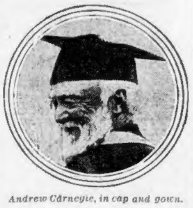
DID ANDREW CARNEGIE GIVE THE $2,500,000 TO TECHNOLOGY?



Andrew Carnegie, in cap and gown.

Asked concerning the rumor that Andrew Carnegie is the donor of the $2,500,000 gift to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, President Maclaurin said:

"Personally, I have no special desire to keep the identity of this benefactor secret, but I am pledged to do so for the present by his request."

"Would it be a fool's errand to ask Mr. Carnegie for a confirmation or denial of this story?" Dr. Maclaurin was asked.

"I should not think so," he replied.

Perhaps the riddle propounded by President Maclaurin this week would have been easier of solution if it had been generally known that the day previous to the announcement President Maclaurin had been closeted with no less a personage than the distinguished head of the Carnegie Trust in Scotland, John Ross and Dr. Woodward, head of the Carnegie Institute in the United States and probable head of the Carnegie Foundation.

It appears that for years Carnegie was importuned to endow M. I. T. He offered finally to do so, if "Tech" would go to Cambridge and form some sort of official union with the Lawrence Scientific School, which had just been endowed by the McKay fund.

"It is poor business judgment to have two scientific institutions running independently so close together," the ironmaster insisted. And he refused to give Tech a cent until its location had been changed.

President Pritchett engineered the plan, but as soon as the Tech alumni heard of it the protest which followed made the plan impossible.

Until President Maclaurin's announcement, New York scientists were puzzled to account for the sudden and mysterious errand of Dr. Ross to this country. He treid to slip in quietly, but he was detected by New York reporters. The consequence was a story that Andrew had been suddenly overtaken by disease and had summoned the "Doctor" from Scotland. Dr. Ross is not a physician, but is Andrew's chief adviser on scientific endowment.

NO BAIL FOR MRS. CHAPMAN

Mrs. Jessie M. Chapman of Fair Oaks avenue, in the Wyoma district of Lynn, was held without bail by Judge Lummus in Lynn District Court today for the Essex Grand Jury on a charge of murder in the first degree for shooting and killing Mrs. Ava F. Ingalls, her neighbor, on March 6.

No defence was put in by W. Scott Peters, counsel for Mrs. Chapman. Four police witnesses were heard.

Mrs. Chapman was taken back to Salem jail, where she has been held since her preliminary hearing on March 7.

John T. Curry, the patrolman who arrested Mrs. Chapman after the shooting of Mrs. Ingalls, testified that, while they were waiting in Lynn Police Station for Chief Burckes, Mrs. Chapman said to him:

"I'm not trying to excuse myself. I've sent my soul to —— tonight. I should be made to suffer. The last two years have been terrible ones to me. I have a violent temper. I thought at times I would do away with myself. But I said no—I will have revenge."

What She Said of Mrs. Ingalls.

Chief Burckes testified Mrs. Chapman told him Mrs. Ingalls had ruined her life. He thought Mrs. Chapman had been drinking the day of the shooting.

From a statement made by her counsel, W. Scott Peters, formerly district attorney of Essex, before the hearing, it was evident that the line of insanity mentioned after the shooting would be followed by the defence. Mr. Peters said before court:

"I know Mrs. Chapman is insane. She even raves at times. Anyone talking with her fifteen minutes will be convinced she is insane. She is not in the best of health, which is one of the causes of her mental derangement."

Came in Auto Patrol.

Mrs. Chapman was brought over the road, six miles, from Salem to Lynn in the police auto patrol. She spoke no word to Martin Silver, the policeman, who sat in the patrol with her. She kept her face turned away from him.

She was brought into the dock of the Lynn District Court, attended by Mrs. Cordelia Frazier, the matron. She wore a black broadcloth suit, black coat, black turban hat and a heavy blue veil.

Mr. Peters, her counsel, talked with her in the dock a few minutes. Oliver Chapman, the defendant's husband, and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chapman of Lynn, were in court. The court room was jammed with spectators, many coming from the Wyoma residential district, where the shooting occurred.

Lodge Fights for Nahant Town Office

Place Flooded With Ballots "For Moderator" at Annual Meetin'.

It's tough when a United States Senator has to fight to be moderator in his own town, but Senator Lodge, or his friends, or his enemies, maybe, thought it necessary to flood Nahant town meetin' with small black and white ballots printed thus:

For Moderator,
HENRY CABOT LODGE.

Considering the national fights the esteemed senior Senator of Massachusetts has been through, it does look as though things were getting pretty dinky when he has to get out ballots for himself to be moderator at March meetin', for fear some one else will crowd him out of that honor he has now held for five years runnin'.

Anyhow, there was some joking among the Nahant voters when they marched up to the little old Town Hall on the top of the hill and found these ballots all about.

"Henry's getting scairt," said the opposition, such as Dan Finnerty and others in the Canary Club.

BATH TRUSTEES MAY APPEAL TO FOSS

That an appeal would be made to Governor Foss to remove Chairman John A. Sullivan of the Finance Commission by members of the bath trustees was the persistent rumor at City Hall today. What the trustees term the unfair and unjust character of the report made upon the bath department by the commission, according to the trustees, was cited as the reason for the demand upon the Governor. It is said the commission went back several years to find things in the department to criticise, and that their real purpose was to color their report so as to reflect upon the present administration. Chairman William A. Murphy said he knew nothing about the rumors. He said he believed the report of the commission was never seen by Chairman Sullivan, whose name was signed to it, and he characterized it as the work of the commission's "boy scout," John C. L. Dowling.

BENWAY VERDICT TO BE KNOWN MONDAY

After deliberating two hours the jury in the case of Joseph P. Benway, the Somerville abductor, charged in two counts with attacking Helen Bennett, the Somerville school girl, whom he abducted, returned a sealed verdict in the first session of the Suffolk Superior Court Friday night. The verdict will not be opened until Monday morning. Assistant District Attorney Webber who conducted the prosecution for the government, will then move for sentence. Benway is now under sentence in Somerville Court on the abduction charge.

FIRE IN MELROSE CAUSES $3,000 DAMAGE

Fire early today in Trafton's shirtwaist factory, Franklin street, Melrose, caused a loss of $3,000. The building is damaged $1,000. The damage to the stock is placed at $2,000.

FREDERICK J. BRAND DEAD

Friends Shocked and Surprised When End is Reported in His Dorchester Home.

Former Alderman Frederick J. Brand died at noon at his home, No. 4 Melville avenue, Dorchester. The news soon reached City Hall and was a surprise and shock to his many friends.

Mr. Brand was an Alderman in years 1908, 1909 and 1910. He was president of the Board of Aldermen in 1909.

Mr. Brand was a Republican and was indorsed at various times by the Good Government Association. He was born in Plainville, Ct., fifty-four years ago, and was graduated from the high school there.

Mr. Brand had been suffering from a complication of diseases for six months and had been confined to his home most of that time. Occasionally he improved sufficiently to go to his office. He had been in bed the last few weeks and his physician said the illness developed into acute heart trouble from which he died.

He is survived by a widow and two brothers and sisters.

Mr. Brand was for years a conspicuous factor in the public life of Boston. He was unusually popular in politics, and although a Republican, was so well liked by the members of both parties that he polled the heaviest vote ever given a candidate in Dorchester.

He was active in social life and a great lover of horses. He drove a fast roadster and was a member of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Dorchester.

He was treasurer of Boston Lodge of Elks and past grand master of St. John Lodge of Masons. He was one of the organizers of the Colonial Club, a leading social organization in Dorchester.

He was head of the Boston Felt Manufacturing Company, No. 110 Beach street, and had been affiliated with the business twenty-five years.

In the memorable mayoralty contest when Storrow, Hibbard and Fitzgerald fought, Mr. Brand announced that he was a candidate for Mayor. He got his papers out, but withdrew at the eleventh hour. He felt hurt because the Good Government Association, which always had favored him, declined to indorse him.

ATTEMPTS TO BLOW UP STEAM HEATER

An attempt was made early today to blow up the steam heating boiler in the basement of a three-story wooden lodging house, No. 707 Western avenue, Lynn. The police have under arrest Frank Archer, thirty years old, against whom a charge of attempting to break and enter has been made.

Before daylight today L. R. Parsons, proprietor of the lodging house, heard a noise in the cellar. He went down and found a spike had been inserted in the safety valve of the boiler, blocking it so, with the high pressure on at the time to heat the building, it would have been but a matter of minutes before an explosion would have occurred.

COASTING SCHOONER WRECKED IN GALE

According to advices received here today, the Boston two-masted schooner St. Leon, Captain Church, bound from Prospect Harbor to Calais, Me., to load lumber for Boston, was driven ashore by the night's gale at Petit Manan, and is a hopeless wreck. Captain Church and his crew of two men reached the shore in safety after a desperate struggle with the elements. The schooner was built in Penobscot in 1871, and has been in the coasting trade along the New England shores for forty years.

Big Meeting for Mrs. Cusumano

Protest Woman's Execution

Appeals in Two Languages

REV. M. R. WITHAM, WHO PLEADS FOR CONDEMNED

REV MABEL R WITHAM

Representative Men and Women Flock to Save Her from Death Chair.

Come to the mass meeting tonight in Faneuil Hall!

State representatives, lawyers, ministers, society women and others will make short addresses to protest against the electrocution of Mrs. Lena Cusumano for the murder of her husband and plead that her sentence be commuted to life imprisonment. The general topic of the death penalty will also be discussed by members of the Anti-Death Penalty League.

More than 500 Italian women of Lawrence have sent in a petition to this meeting, asking that everything be done to have the sentence of Mrs. Cusumano changed to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Kate MacCormack of Roslindale, a trained nurse who has been working among the Italians in Lawrence, attending to their sick and giving them medical assistance, will be at the meeting.

"Wherever I went into the homes of the Italians in Lawrence," said Mrs. MacCormack, "I was simply implored by the women to do something to save Mrs. Cusumano from the electric chair.

"I told them that a mass meeting would be held Saturday evening in Faneuil Hall under the auspices of the Boston AMERICAN when this subject would be talked about. They seemed so glad to know that something would be done. I gave them a petition to sign and in one morning I obtained more than 350 signatures, and I have now more than 500. The names include not only the very poor, who are very much touched with this case, but the well-to-do and influential are eager that the sentence of the condemned woman be changed.

"I do not know of anything that seems to appeal so much to the Italians as this case."

Rev. Mabel R. Witham, a pastor of the Church of Immortalism, Huntington avenue, said of the Cusumano sentence: "No man to my mind has the right to pluck the gift of life from another of God's children and it is in this spirit that I plead with those who have the power in our Commonwealth that they allow the gift of life, poor thing as it may become, to yet remain in the trembling hands of this sin-stained suffering woman, Mrs. Lena Cusumano."

Lawyer H. H. Patten of Maine, who is now a member of the Massachusetts bar and has made many pleas in behalf of abolishing the death penalty, will preside.

The following will speak in English: Mrs. Florence Spooner, Thomas J. Grady, counsel for Mrs. Lena Cusumano; Representative Frank H. Pope of Leominster, Representative Edward R. C. Bagley of East Boston, John F. Duffy, lawyer; Joseph Santusuosso, lawyer; Rev. William H. Van Allen, rector of the Church of the Advent; Rev. Mabel R. Whitman, Boston; Mrs. Kate MacCormack, trained nurse among Italians at Lawrence.

EX-GOV. HILL OF MAINE DIES

Ex-Governor John F. Hill of Maine, chairman of the Republican National Committee, died early today at the Hotel Touraine.

Ex-Governor Hill was taken ill suddenly several days ago of an old affliction of the heart. His seizure, the doctors declared, was the result of overwork.

The end came at 7:10 a. m. today. Ex-Governor Hill had been treated by physicians who made every effort to save his life, and the streets beneath his windows were covered with sawdust to lessen the noise of the passing teams. Musicians in adjoining buildings were requested not to play their instruments, so as to make his surroundings as quiet as possible.

Governor Hill became unconscious during the night, but as morning came on he became conscious. Shortly after 6 o'clock, however, he again sank into unconsciousness.

Mrs. Hill, and their son, Percy V. Hill, were with him during the night and were at his bedside when he passed away.

Dr. George Carroll Smith was at the bedside all night. He gives heart failure superinduced by pneumonia as the cause of Governor Hill's death.

The body will be embalmed and taken on an evening train to Augusta.

The funeral will probably be held Tuesday in Augusta.

Hill was for two terms Governor of the State of Maine. He was a close personal friend of President Taft, and was the President's own choice for his post as chairman of the National Committee.

Dr. Hill was fifty-seven years old, and was considered by his associates as a man strong and vigorous, good for many more years of active work and service. He had been acting chairman of the Republican National Committee, and only recently was made permanent chairman. The news of his illness came as an unexpected shock to his friends, political and otherwise.

Dr. Hill was classed as the original Taft man of Maine. He was picked by Postmaster-General Hitchcock in 1908 to succeed him at the head of the Republican National Committee.

Dr. Hill was born in Eliot, Me. His home recently had been in Augusta, where he was partner in the big publishing house of Vickery & Hill. He was a descendant in the seventh generation of John Hill, who came from England in 1624 and settled in Dover, N. H.

STRIKERS FIRE ON POLICE IN BARRE BATTLE

Angry Workmen Use Buckshot to Prevent Police From Checking Disorders; More Trouble is Feared

Three policemen doing duty at the Barre strike were shot but not seriously injured today in a clash between them and about 200 strikers. Between fifteen and twenty shots were fired. The policemen were hit with buckshot.

The injured policemen are:

John J. Conlin of Worcester, hit in the back; injury not serious.

John J. Ryan, special policeman of Barre, hit in back.

The injured men were attended by Dr. A. W. Fuller of Barre.

Joseph Stockdale, another special policeman of Barre, was hit in the face with a stone and was badly cut.

Massachusetts today faced a renewal of its textile strikes and riots when it was announced that the 30,000 textile workers of Fall River have rejected an offer of a 5 per cent. increase and have demanded 15 per cent. increase in their wages by March 25. The operatives may go on strike if their demands are not granted. They are A. F. of L. workers.

Trouble is imminent among the 1,100 wool workers at Barre, and a conflict arose today over sending militia. Eighty armed police officers patrol the streets.

The employers have demanded troops. Sheriff Dwinnell of Fitchburg ordered out Company A of the Second Regiment today, and they prepared to go when Adjutant-General Pearson, who is at Barre investigating conditions for Governor Foss, rescinded the order and the troops were held back. Governor Foss does not want to send troops until it is absolutely necessary.

A second effort was made today to get the militia at Barre when the selectmen of the town sent a registered letter to Governor Foss saying that seven strikers "have resisted the laws of the Commonwealth, that property to the value of a million dollars or more is endangered and that, in our opinion, a riot is threatened."

The selectmen, C. H. Haven, J. H. Holden and James A. Rice, added in the letter:

New Appeal for Troops.

"Believing that the civil authorities with means at hand are unable to preserve order and enforce law, we therefore request you to send at once to our aid one hundred men of the militia of Massachusetts."

This request for 100 soldiers was denied the Barre selectmen. Governor Foss feels that the civil authorities of Worcester county must be made to preserve order without the aid of militia.

A statement sent out by Dudley M. Holman, Secretary of the Governor, this noon, handled Sheriff Dwinnell of Worcester without gloves, so to speak. The statement said in part:

"So far as any attempt being made by the sheriff of Worcester County is concerned, apparently it had consisted in the swearing in of sixteen deputies and the securing of a detail of twenty men from the Worcester police department; and although he had been urged by the Governor to augment his forces to a sufficient number to take care of any possible disturbance, he simply fell back on the militia forces and ordered them out. The Governor feels that the civil authorities of Worcester County have not exhausted their resources nor made any serious attempt to take care of the situation."

Back at Lawrence Mills.

At Lawrence today there was a rush of workers to the mills, but enough work will not be ready for them for a week, and they were turned away. The Pacific and Arlington Mills refused to meet the new advance granted by the American Woolen Company, Atlantic and smaller.

William D. Haywood and other strike leaders of the I. W. W. organization announced today that they will probably change their headquarters to Fall River and New Bedford to organize the workers into a demand for increased wages. One I. W. W. leader, Samuel Fassel, has been sent to Barre to organize the strikers there.

The Fall River Textile Council notified the Cotton Manufacturers' Association that its offer of an advance of 5 per cent., to take effect March 25, is rejected, and calls upon the association to make the increase on March 25 15 per cent.

Judge Leveroni of Boston and J. P. S. Mahoney and Edwin S. Morse of Lawrence have begun examination of the checks and vouchers of the I. W. W. strike committee and they will be ready to make a report to Justice Hammond of Boston the first of the week. This examination follows proceedings to force the I. W. W. officials to make an accounting of the money they received and spent in connection with the strike.

Military Services.

Military memorial services were held by the two companies of soldiers of the Ninth Regiment at Lawrence. The services were in the open air along the bank of the canal and were led by the Rev. W. J. Swaffield and the Rev. Father H. T. Regan.

Several hundred pairs of shoes were distributed today among the children of the Italian strikers by the Rev. Father Mariano Milanese of the Church of the Holy Rosary.

Beginning Monday the special police force of Lawrence, which now numbers about 200, will be reduced and the number lessened gradually until all of the extra men are recalled.

There seems little disposition on the part of the foreign-speaking operatives to return to work in the Everett mills. Most of those who worked in these mills are Poles. The Everett mills have offered an advance of pay, but the strikers say it is not enough.

It is a foregone conclusion that many of the operatives will not be able to get work when they return to the mills on Monday, because there will be no places for them, and the mills have stated that they will not discharge new hands to make places for the old ones who went on strike.

The loom fixers union of the Lancaster Mills at Clinton sent to A. P. Lowe of Fitchburg, president of the corporation, a request for an increase of 10 per cent. in the wages of the loomfixers regularly employed and of 20 per cent. for extra men.

The union takes this action after voting to refuse to accept the 5 per cent. granted the operatives this week. There are ninety memebrs of this union, which is the only one among the operatives of the Lancaster Mills.

The Merrimac, Tremont-Suffolk, Boott, Massachusetts, Hamilton, Appleton and Lawrence cotton mills in Lowell employ 20,000 hands.

The following letter was sent by special delivery mail at 9 o'clock today to C. M. Hathaway, secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association. The letter, signed by Thomas Taylor, secretary of the Fall River Textile Council, says:

"At a special meeting of the Textile Council, held last evening, delegates present affiliated with the five unions reported that at special and general meetings held Wednesday and Thursday night of this week, the announcement by the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of an advance in wages of 5 per cent., to take effect March 25, had been considered and rejected by them as unsatisfactory.

"I was further directed to communicate with you and request on behalf of the Textile Council that on March 25 wages of the operatives of this city be advanced 15 per cent."

It is now for the manufacturers to say whether there will be a conference.

William E. Trautman, William D. Haywood, Gates and other strike leaders here today considered the question of going to Fall River and New Bedford to take charge of the strikes that seem imminent there.

At Lawrence today the police received word of possible trouble from pickets at the Arlington Mills, and a squad of twenty-five were hurried to the scene. They found seventy-five pickets about the mills, but the men showed no tendency to riot.

Hundreds were turned away from the mills. It is now believed that it will be a matter of several days before work can be found for many of the strikers. The operatives are complaining at this state of affairs, as many had expected they need only go back to receive their old jobs.

Adjutant-General Pearson immeditaely communicated with Captain Barry. At his command the troops were not sent out.

Sheriff Dwinnell, under the law, has a right to issue a precept for militia.

Governor Foss is strongly against sending any troops to Barre unless it is absolutely necessary. He sent word to Sheriff Dwinnell not to order any troops out unless he was given permission to do so by the Governor or Adjutant-General Pearson.

Adjutant-General Pearson and the other officers who have been investigating the conditions at Barre and who are still there today are unanimously of the opinion that no troops are necessary.

All day yesterday the Governor was begged by owners of the manufacturing plants at Barre to send troops there. The Governor sent six members of the State police from the State House, headed by Captain Proctor, and from Worcester went twenty deputy sheriffs.

Major Walsh and Colonel Sweetser were ordered to report to the Governor whether or not the situation justified sending troops to the city.

1,000 Operatives on Strike.

High Sheriff Dwinnell of Fitchburg issued the precept calling upon Captain Barrett of the Company A, Second Regiment, to send out a company of his men to Barre to help maintain order. The precept, according to Dudley M. Holman, private secretary to Governor Foss, was issued contrary to Governor Foss' instructions.

Adjutant-General Gardner W. Pearson, who with Colonel E. Leroy Sweetser, Lieutenant Stevens of the Adjutant-General's office and Major Thomas L. Walsh of the Governor's staff spent all of last night at Barre investigating the conditions there, reported today to the Governor that no troops were necessary. He was authorized to send word to Captain Barrett not to send the troops out until word comes direct from Governor Foss himself to that effect.

BRITAIN ACTS TO END STRIKE

LONDON, March 16.—The government today took its first step toward parliamentary action to end the national coal strike. At a special meeting of the cabinet, Premier Asquith submitted to his colleagues the draft of a minimum wage bill, drawn by Chancellor David Lloyd-George.

The Premier announced the joint conferences had failed to bring about a settlement and explained the situation was now up to the government. It is believed King George already has approved the bill.

The bill may be introduced in Parliament on Tuesday, if it can be wrought into shape by that time. The government, realizing the full burden now rests with its machinery, will hasten matters as much as possible.

At the Premier's request both miners and operators met this afternoon and appointed representatives to confer with the government regarding the details of the minimum wage scale. Their data will relate to prices and mining conditions.

Coincident with the government's action, reports were circulated that the officers of the Federated Miners' Union are trying to effect an agreement with the heads of other labor organizations with a view to tying up every industry in the United Kingdom.

In many places manufacturers have only kept their works going by extraordinary efforts. They will now no longer be able to do this, and within a few days hundreds of thousands more men and women will be added to the 2,000,000 and more already idle.

This morning the Great Western Railway Company shut down its construction works at Swindon, throwing out of employment 10,000 skilled mechanics. The London & Northwestern Railway has given notice that after Monday a large number of cars will cease running, while many other railroad lines and factories have been compelled to give their men notice to leave.

At Sheffield many of the works have only continued in operation during the past week by the most careful hoarding of coal, but even with this thriftiness over 25,000 men in that city have been discharged, and on Monday it is feared that practically every factory in town will be closed.

Not only has the passenger service of the railroads been cut down, but the freight trains have been reduced in number to such an extent that it is impossible, almost, to ship any goods.

A few small collieries are still working, and wagons from the neighboring towns form long lines over night, awaiting the doling out of the scanty supply.

THREATEN STRIKE IN AMERICAN MINES AT END OF MONTH

NEW YORK, March 16.—Negotiations between the anthracite operators and representatives of the miners are at an end for the time being at least. At the final conference the operators declined to recede from their stand of Wednesday, while the union leaders stood pat. The session thereupon adjourned sine die.

President White of the United Mine Workers said today:

"The negotiations are at an end. The operators have even refused to discuss our demands with us. There is nothing more to be said, therefore. We are ready at any time to consider any proposition which the operators may make if it is offered in a fair spirit, but when they issue a statement and say that it represents their position, from which they will not recede, discussion is useless. We shall hold a final meeting of our committee today and then return to our homes."

"Does that mean a strike?" Mr. White was asked.

"I have nothing to say about that," was his reply. "We have presented our demands, which represent the terms upon which the miners are willing to continue relations with the operators. These demands have been peremptorily rejected. What action is now to be taken our committee will consider at its meeting today. But it certainly has no further proposition to make the operators and no demand that we have made upon will be either modified or withdrawn."

The general belief that unless powerful influences which are at work to prevent a strike bring the two sides together, April 1 will see the inauguration of a bitter struggle which may involve the bituminous as well as the Anthracite interests throughout the country.

Comment Roused Over Building Commissioner of the City of Boston.

East Boston people joined in asking the question of Mayor Fitzgerald today: "Why is Mr. Everett?" when last night's wind storm blew down a three-story frame dwelling on Bennington street upon which Mr. Everett's building department had put its "O. K."

The house is a frame three-flat structure. There are four of them on Bennington street, near the Orient Heights station of the Narrow Gauge Railway. During a wind storm a month ago three of the houses were blown down as easily as if they had been little dominoes standing in a row.

The building inspectors hurried to the scene—after the houses were lying on the ground. "Properly constructed," was the verdict, but certain changes were ordered made. The houses were straightened back up on their feet again and the work of completion went on.

The wind blew last night. One house simply collapsed. The three others tottered on their legs and slanted dangerously, but didn't fall. To the scene went Building Inspector Edward Turner.

Mr. Turner said: "I inspected the houses myself after a previous accident there. At that time Mr. Everett and Mr. Emerson of the Finance Commission also made an inspection, and Mr. Everett and myself wrote a special report.

"We ordered certain changes in the foundations of the houses. These changes were made. It is not surprising that any frame house might blow down in the wind and in the position in which these were. Alone last evening I started down for East Boston, because I thought it possible that something of the kind might have happened in that district where there are so many of these cheap frame houses. I was not surprised."

Secretary Cabot of the Boston Fire Underwriters started the ball rolling this week by asking Mayor Fitzgerald "Why is Mr. Everett?" following a fire at No. 97 Summer street, when it was decided that there were no fire escapes on the building. Mr. Everett, whose office is in City Hall Annex, across the street from the scene of the fire, promised to investigate the matter at once.

FEAR A BOXER RISING IN CHINA

PEKIN, March 16.—The Boxer spirit which brought about foreign intervention in China in 1900 is flaming forth again and thousands of Chinese who were affiliated in the uprising are joining the anti-Republican forces.

It is reported General Sheng-Yun, the Manchu who is leading 10,000 men against this city, is making appeals to the Boxers to overthrow the republic and drive out the "foreign devils."

The order of "The Fist of the Righteous," as the Boxers call it, is calling for volunteers. This adds the most dangerous aspect to the interior situation which has yet developed there.

FIVE YEAR OLD SETS 3 FIRES

NEW BEDFORD, March 16.—Because he liked to see smoke and hear the fire bells ring, Louis Beaudoin, five years old of No. 531 South Second street, set three fires that damaged his parents' clothes and the furniture of the tenants. Louis gave the Fire Department two consecutive runs to the South End of the city.

After the third fire had been set the police decided that until Louis' parents returned from work at the Acushnet Mills the safest place for the boy was in the South End Police Station.

Louis found some matches and presently smoke was issuing from a bedroom closet A neighbor succeeded in extinguishing the blaze. A few moments later smoke was seen coming in clouds from another bed room. This time the neighbors were unable to put out the fire unassisted and Box 57 was rung in. The firemen put out the blaze, but had hardly returned to their quarters before Box 57 was again pulled. The firemen responded to the same house and this time clothes hanging over a chair in the parlor were ablaze.

KILLS SELF ON SECOND TRIAL

John P. Harvey, twenty-eight years old, of No. 4 South Russell street, West End, early today twice attempted suicide, once by cutting his throat, and again, when policemen attempted to arrest him by diving through the window to the street thirty feet below. He died at the Massachusetts General Hospital at 9 a. m. Mrs. Mary Harvey, his wife, said:

"Early today his landlady, Mrs. Fallon, heard a noise, went to his room and found he had tried to cut his throat. She phoned to the Joy street police station."

Patrolmen Sullivan and Foley rushed to the house and found Harvey barricaded in his room. He showed the utmost terror when they attempted to enter and bombarded them with bottles, old shoes and other missiles. Finally Sullivan rushed for the man, who dashed to the window. Shouting, "You won't get me," he dived to the street.

ROOSEVELT MEN PUSH CAMPAIGN

Meetings were held in Congressional districts all over Massachusetts to insure the sending, if possible, of an instructed delegation to Chicago for Theodore Roosevelt.

The Roosevelt fighters in Massachusetts are out in the open now in their fight for the former President. The Republican Progressive Club at No. 15 State street became the "Roosevelt Campaign Club." More elaborate quarters were secured, more clerks employed and a thorough canvas of the State begun. The plan decided upon was to place a full set of eight delegates-at-large on the Roosevelt primary ticket, to have no alliance with the Taft supporters and to allow no name upon the ticket except that of an open Roosevelt supporter.

Tried and true Roosevelt men will be named for district delegates and alternates in the fourteen congressional districts. The meetings are expected to counteract any advantage that the Taft forces in Massachusetts might secure from the coming next week to New England of the President.

Corbett's Chat

CORBETT

Probably no place in New England has made more progress during the last 25 or 30 years than has Providence. Jumped right ahead! Improvements right and left. At night the city is in a blaze of glory, as it were, with the electric light display, including signs and novelties, fantastic and attractive. For these and other excellent features, the Narragansett Electric Lighting Company, practical, progressive, public spirited, and right there with the goods, both as to equipment and service rendered to the public, deserves favorable mention.

Just a few facts, briefly stated: The Narrragansett Electric Lighting Company was founded in 1884, with a capitalization of $100,000, which has been increased from time to time as the company's field of operations expanded, till today the capital stock is $4,500,000; and it is all paid for in cash. Not a dollar of this company's capitalization is represented by franchise or good will. Since 1889 the Narragansett Electric Lighting Company has acquired a number of electric light and gas companies. Its underground system extends over forty miles, and contains 400 miles of duct and about 440 miles of cable. Last year the company expended $169,000 for extension of lines and increase of plant. In July there was a reduction in price of lighting current from fourteen cents to twelve cents per kilowatt hour, which meant a reduction of $65,000 annually to patrons. (The Edison Company of Boston did likewise later on). Last November another reduction was made from twelve cents to ten cents, a saving of $75,000 a year to customers.

It goes without saying that the Narragansett Electric Lighting Company's efficient service and fair dealings are appreciated, and reflects credit upon the able management.

The New England Southern Conference will hold its annual session in Trinity Union M. E. Church, Providence, commencing March 26. The pastor of this church, Rev. Julian S. Wadsworth, D. D., a man of profound spirituality and pleasing personality, will give all who attend the conference a hearty welcome.

Generosity and prosperity go hand in hand. I heard John S. Huyler's pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodell, make the statement that Mr. Huyler gave away an average of $1,000 a day for religious work the last twenty years of his life; and yet Huyler died wealthy a year ago, and the candy business he established continues to flourish just the same.

* * *

I am in hearty accord with anything new, particularly if it has some get-up-and-get in it, even if I don't always understand the modus operandi. In this connection I wish to direct attention to the new invention, the Silent Turner Engine—a reciprocating two-cycle engine or motor—a working model of which is now on exhibition by the Electro Magnetic and Gasolene Motor Company, No. 76 Tremont street, room 9. Go in and see the engine today. Take an expert with you, if you like.

The elevator boy has his ups and downs, but he keeps cheerful. Good nature is a great asset. Spring into a new suit of clothes and you will feel fine right away. Fashionable and interesting stock to choose from at Wolf's, "My Clothier," corner of Hanover and Portland streets—Boston's better store. You feel better after you have traded there!

The commercial travelers, the Gideons, the best of good fellows, have done a grand work in placing the Bible in the rooms of Boston hotels.

KELIHER KNITS UNDERWEAR NOW

"Kelliher is now making underwear. He was assigned to a bench in the knitting room this morning."

—Warden Bridges of the State Prison, Charlestown.

"'Big Bill' told me after he was sentenced that he feels better now than he has for years. He said he was in better trim than he has been since he played football. Regular life is evidently doing him good. I thought he looked much better than when he was arrested, two years ago."

—United States District Attorney Asa P. French.

District Attorney French today declared that unless he receives corroboration of the statements made by William J. (Big Bill) Kelliher that he was robbed of $28,000, by men who offered to bribe a jury and secure his freedom, he cannot take any action in the matter.

The District Attorney said that he did not consider that any personal reflections had been made by Kelliher on the manner in which he, as District Attorney, or his office force, had prosecuted the case, and further that he did not consider that any uncorroborated bribery charges related to him or any of his staff.

Comment by Bates.

John L. Bates, receiver of the National City Bank, read the Kelliher statement and said.

"This is mighty interesting. I must get a copy. My suit for the money deposited with the bond company hasn't been decided yet. I can't say now whether I will take further action as a result of these charges. Of course accusations on the unsupported word of a convicted man doesn't amount to much upon their face. Corroboration is required.

"True, somebody may have bled Mr. Kelliher. I shall look into it."

Former District Attorney Arthur D. Hill, on the grievance committee of the Bar Association, said:

"It would not be proper for a member of the committee to say what the full committee would or would not do in any case. It is something I do not care to discuss in any way."

When shown Kelliher's statement alleging that he (Kelliher) had paid money to bribe a Federal Jury, in Suffolk County, District Attorney Pelletier said:

"I have read Kelliher's statement. Unless I receive some corroboration I do not feel justified in proceeding in this matter."

First Shamrocks of Year Arrive Sent to Mayor's Youngest Daughter

EUNICE FITZGERALD, WHO GETS FIRST SHAMROCKS IN BOSTON THIS YEAR

"Shamrock Ship" Reaches Port Two Days Late, After Rough Voyage Across.

Miss Eunice Fitzgerald, the youngest daughter of Mayor Fitzgerald, has received the first box of shamrock to arrive in Boston this year.

It came on the "Shamrock ship" for 1912, the White Star liner Megantic. The custom has arisen among the Irish-Americans of Boston of giving the name "Shamrock ship" to the last ship out of Cork to arrive in Boston before St. Patrick's morn.

The reason is that it always bears gifts of shamrock from the folks at home to those who have come to America. Every Irish immigrant on the ship is loaded with it, and the sailors and stewards have hundreds of boxes of the symbol of Erin which they have undertaken to deliver.

Hard, Rough Trip Over.

The Megantic docked this morning, two days late, but still in plenty of time to deliver her precious burden of real Irish shamrock. The big liner was delayed by furious storms throughout her passage over, and was battered and tossed by seas that broke clean across her boat deck, sixty feet above the water line.

There were days when she logged not much more than one-third of a normal day's run, and when the seas seemed determined to destroy her, but she arrived in Boston with not a single box of her shamrock damaged.

When the newspaper men boarded the big ship Captain Hugh David roared out:

"Ahoy, there, you scribes and Pharisees! I've something for you. Pilot Whelan, out of Cork Harbor, sent it you."

A Little Bit of Ireland.

Captain John Whelen is the man who brought the Megantic out of Cork Harbor a month ago, on her last trip to Boston. When the big ship had reached the open sea there was such a terrible storm blowing that he could not leave her.

When he got to Boston the newspaper men did what little they could to make his visit pleasant. In return he sent them by Captain David what that gentleman called "A bit of green shamrock and a little piece of Ireland."

And, though Captain David is a Sassenach, he had tended the shamrocks with such care, notwithstanding the storms and his responsibilities in such times of peril, that they were as fresh and green as when Captain Whelen had dug up the bit of sod in which they grew.

RAPS FARMERS FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING

PHILADELPHIA, March 16.—Sir Horace Plunkett, the Irish nobleman interested in agriculture, said in an address before the Pennsylvania Rural Progress Association that the present high cost of living was due to the failure of farmers to follow intelligent business methods in the growing and selling of their products.

FATHER OF TWINS ON 79TH BIRTHDAY

Alien Beans Send Boston Boy Home

Philip Walsh Gets Over "Spring Fret" When He Tastes New York Cooking.

We must go, go, far away from here,
On the other side of the world we're overdue.
Send the way to be clear before you, when the old Spring fret comes o'er you,
And the red gods call for you.

—Kipling's "Red Gods."

Philip Walsh of No. 626 Dudley street was sent back to Boston today by the New York police, to whom he appealed last night with a pitiful tale in which Spring fever, Kipling and New York baked beans were mixed.

Patrolman John Campbell was accosted by the boy, who is about fourteen years old. He told the policeman he and a friend had run away from home recently, separted in Providence, and he had gone on to New York. "It was the 'spring fret'" the lad explained, and then quoted Kipling as above.

"What makes you tired of your wandering?" asked the policeman

"Your beans," said young Walsh. "They're horrible. As soon as I tasted the first New York bean, I decided to go home."

MAN FINED $75 FOR KICKING AROUND A BOSTON TERRIER

"Even though the dog was not a hound, but a blooded Boston terrier," said Judge Burke to John Robinson of No. 79 Montgomery street, who was in the police court on a charge of cruelty to animals, "you had no right to throw it out the window."

"The pup started lapping my face and kissing me while I was asleep in my room, and I thought he was going to bite me. That's why I threw him out the window," said Jobinsonu.

But he was fined $75 by Judge Burke and immediately entered an appeal, being held in $500 bonds.

It was charged that Robinson took a Boston terrier named Pincher, belonging to Harry B. Ross of No. 73 Montgomery street, as it was playing in a doorway, dragged it to his room on the third floor of his home, and later threw it out of a window. The dog just missed landing in an ash barrel, and crawled to the rear door of the Ross home, seriously injured and whining pitifully.

HORSE RUNS AWAY; DRIVER'S HIP HURT

A horse hitched to a wagon belonging to the Metropolitan Furniture Company of No. 85 Franklin street, became frightened in front of No. 684 Washington street and started to run. He collided with an inward-bound Washington street car. Francis W. Goodwin, the driver, was thrown into the street, dislocating his left hip. He was taken to the Relief Hospital. The horse was stopped at the corner of Eliot street.

MABEL URNER IS MARRIED AGAIN

When you come home and Friend Wife makes a dash for the AMERICAN, say to her:

"There's no installment of 'Married Life the Third Year' in the paper, but here's a piece of news for you. Mabel Herbert Urner is now entitled to write a book on 'Married Life the Second Time.'"

It's perfectly true. The author who portrays the spats of Warren and Helen has entered matrimony again. Witness the following notice:

MARRIED—At Boston on March 12, 1912, Lothrop Colgate Harper and Mabel Herbert Urner.

Mr. Harper lives at No. 437 Fifth avenue, New York city. He is forty-four years old and gives his occupation as a bookkeeper. He is known in New York as an expert on rare editions, bindings and American bibliography. This is his first marriage.

Application for License.

The application for a marriage license for Mr. Harper and Mrs. Urner was made by Mr. Harper in Boston on February 12. Under the Massachusetts law they had to wait seven days before the license could be issued. There is no return of marriage filed so far by a clergyman, but dispatches from New York today say the wedding took place in Boston March 12.

The application for the license shows that Mrs. Harper has been living at No. 37 Madison avenue, New York, that she was born in Cincinnati and that her maiden name was Mabel Herbert. This is her second marriage. Her first marriage, to Mr. Urner, ended in divorce.

The application also gives the information, in which the women readers will be keenly interested, that the author of "Married Life the Third Year" is twenty-eight years old.

It was after Mrs. Harper's first marriage had ended unhappily that she wrote "Confessions of a Neglected Wife." She was asked point-blank: "Where did you get the local color for your book?"

"I don't think I could say," she replied, "but I know it's true to life."

More Chapters Come.

The wives will now ask: "I wonder if she will stop writing, now that she is married again?"

Answer—No. She will not. Mrs. Harper says she will not abandon her writing. So the women may look for more adventures of Warren and Helen, as related in "Married Life the Third Year."

Mrs. Harper has had one of the most popular literary successes of the past five years. Women, particularly, devour her writings. They sympathize with the neglected wife in the story, then compare the brute of a husband with their own, usually finding many points of similarity. That's one reason why Mrs. Harper's writings are so popular—with the women.

PRESIDENT FINDS JOB FOR LEPER

WASHINGTON, March 16.—John Early, the leper who was shipped about the country because of disagreement between scientists as to his disease, has been provided with a position at the Port Diamond quarantine station, near Port Townsend, Washington, by President Taft, Secretary McVeagh and Surgeon General Blue of the public health service. Early will take care of Andrew Grover, a leper over whom there is no dispute.

TAFT CLUB FORMED AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., March 16.—At an enthusiastic meeting held here the following officers of a Dartmouth Taft club were elected: President, H. K. Urion of Chicago; vice-president, M. Whittemore of Dover, N. H.; secretary, E. C. Gordon of Canaan, N. H. Resolutions were adopted indorsing the administration of President Taft.

IS THE PAIN THERE?

Then Your Kidneys May Be Weak and in Need of Quick Attention.

Do your kidneys ache? Is your back lame and weak?
Do you feel tired, despondent—not up to the mark?

If you do need a good kidney remedy, you want to know what you are getting.

The endorsement of residents of Yuma, Ariz., or Tampa, Fla., would prove nothing to you.

But if you get a remedy that has won a reputation in your own city for curing backache, kidney and bladder ills, one that is publicly recommended by your own townspeople, you can be sure it has merit. That is what you get in Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is proof:

BOSTON TESTIMONY

P. H. Hynes, 140 Bremen St., East Boston, Mass., says: "Two years ago there were severe pains in my back and limbs and I had occasional dizzy spells. In fact, a miserable feeling ran through my system. I was told to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did so, finding that they relieved my suffering." (From statement given June 22, 1905.)

RE-ENDORSEMENT.

When Mr. Hynes was interviewed on June 15, 1910, he said: "Doan's Kidney Pills have my praise today the same as when they cured me of kidney complaint some years ago. I have had no recurrence of the trouble."

Mrs. Harriet Walters, 1 Jay St., South Boston, Mass., says: "It often seemed as if my back would break, and if I had to be on my feet a little longer than usual the pains in my back became almost unbearable. Dark spots appeared before my eyes, and I was so dizzy that I had to grasp something to keep from falling. When a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills I did so and was restored to good health." (Statement given July 20, 1908.)

NO TROUBLE SINCE.

On June 13, 1910, Mrs. Walters said: "I am just as willing to give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement today as I was two years ago. The cure they effected has been permanent."

MAINE SINKS TO SEA GRAVE

HAVANA, March 16.—While great guns boomed a requiem salute, all that was left of the United States battleship Maine, her shattered, rusty decks strewn with thousands of American beauty roses, her sides draped with black, and the Stars and Stripes flying, sunk to her last resting place today in the Gulf of Mexico, nine miles off the Cuban coast. She lies in sixty fathoms of water.

The sea burial of the Maine was the climax to a day devoted to mourning throughout the city. The ceremonies began at dawn, when thousands gathered in the streets. Business was suspended and almost every building flew the United States or Cuban flag at half mast.

Requiem Mass for Crew.

At 8 o'clock a requiem mass was celebrated for the sixty-five dead sailors by Rev. Father John P. Chadwick, former chaplain of the Maine, in City Hall. Father Chadwick was chaplain on board the battleship when she was blown up in Havana Harbor in 1898, but escaped.

After the mass the bodies, in thirty-four caskets, were carried on board the battleship North Carolina which, with the cruiser Birmingham, convoyed the Maine to her final resting place.

The bones of the seamen will be interred in Arlington National Cemetery at Washington on March 23.

The funeral cortege through the streets from the municipal building to Caballeria wharf, where they were transferred to the North Carolina, was imposing. The caskets were borne on gun carriages drawn by Cuban sailors. Following the gun carriages came President Gomez of Cuba, his cabinet, United States Minister Beaupre, and the diplomatic corps, judges of the Cuban Supreme Court, scores of officers of state in the government and the Spanish War veterans. The bodies of the sailors lay in state all night in the Municipal Council Chamber, where a guard of honor was changed every five minutes.

There were more imposing scenes at Caballeria wharf, where the bodies were transferred by the city of Havana, represented by Major Cardenas of the Cuban army, to the United States, represented by General Bixby. Just before the caskets were carried on board the North Carolina, Father Chidwick delivered a funeral oration while all stood with bared heads.

Maine Moves to Sea.

While the burial service was going forward, naval tugs were getting the hulk of the Maine under way. As Father Chidwick finished, the hull of the battleship was towed through Florida straits on the way to sea.

The naval cortege, in addition to the Maine and its convoy of United States ships, consisted of several Cuban warships, revenue cutters and launches, all dressed with flags at half mast.

The procession was three miles long and moved with majestic slowness. When the burial spot was reached, the convoying ships formed a hollow square, with the Maine in the centre. General Bixby and Major H. B. Ferguson boarded the hulk and threw open the seacocks of her bulkheads. In order to make sinking certain, they lighted fuses attached to two heavy charges of dynamite.

As the Maine slowly sank the cannon on the warships boomed a salute and "taps" was sounded.

In less than half an hour nothing remained of the Maine. A few of the funeral roses floated on the placid waters of the Gulf.

The fleet of attending ships parted, the American boats steaming North, the Cuban South.

FLAGS HALF-MASTED FROM NOON TO SUNSET IN HONOR OF MAINE

All flags on public buildings in the State were at half-mast from noon to sunset, as a token of remembrance of the burial of the battleship Maine, off the Cuban coast. The half-masting was made State-wide by a proclamation of Governor Foss, which read as follows:

"Whereas, what remains of the former battleship Maine will be escorted to the coast of Cuba with proper ceremony, accompanied by war vessels of the United States and Cuba and by officials and citizens of both countries, and there be sent to its last resting place,

"I therefore direct, as a mark of respect and in memory of those loyal patriotic Americans who were carried to their death by the destruction of the Maine, that the flags on all public buildings in the Commonwealth be lowered to half-staff from 12 o'clock noon until sunset, on Saturday, March 16."

"It is a mark of respect that I feel proud to pay to the glorious martyrs who died in that terrible disaster."

CAPTURES THIEF WITH BEER BOTTLE AS A REVOLVER

NEW YORK, March 16.—"Joe" Foster, the "Buffalo Bug," who was arraigned in Newark Police Court today on a charge of burglary, was a happy crook till he yielded to the bottle. "Joe" can't look a beer bottle in the face now. He was rifling the cash register in a Newark saloon when he heard a command: "Throw up your hands." In the dim light he saw a man covering him with a revolver. Foster elevated his hands and was marched out and into the hands of a policeman. Then his captor, Edward Wells, said: "Here's the revolver I caught you with." The thief looked, and almost fainted. He had been held up by a man with a beer bottle.

LINER OCEANA SUNK IN CRASH

EASTBOURNE, Eng., March 16.—The Peninsular and Oriental Liner Oceana was rammed by the four-masted German bark Pisagua off Beachy Head in the English Channel early today and so badly damaged that she sank five and a half hours later while attempting to reach port.

Fifteen to twenty-four lives were reported lost, one of the small boats of the liner having capsized. Many of the drowned were women.

Officials of the steamship company declare all the passengers were saved and accounted for.

A report reached New Haven that the Pisagua also sunk, with all hands, forty miles off Beachy Head.

The German vessel, a much heavier ship than the Oceana, which carried 500 passengers, rammed the liner amidships and the latter began to settle immediately. The panic stricken passengers of the Oceana—attired in their night clothes, for the disaster occurred at 4:40 a. m. while most of them were asleep—rushed to the decks.

The officers succeeded in calming the excited men and women, but the crew, all Lascars, became so panic stricken that they were unable to lower the lifeboats from the davits. Most of them dropped to their knees on the decks, praying and waiting for the end to come.

Passengers rushed to the aid of the officers and the small boats were soon lowered. Twenty-five of the passengers piled into the first boat and it was soon under way.

In addition to the 500 passengers which the Oceana carried she had also $5,000,000 in specie on board. This is believed to have been saved, as the Oceana was taken under tow by a channel boat which stood by after the collision.

The vessel filled so rapidly that when seven miles off Dover she sank.

The weather was clear at the time of the accident and lifeguards along the promontory of Beachy Head could easily see the Oceana. As quickly as possible lifeboats put out from the station. They took off many of the passengers and the terrorized crew. The only personal injury resulting from the disaster was the breaking of a leg of the ship's carpenter on board the Oceana.

Captain Hutchinson of the British Army, who was on the Oceana, blamed the pilot of the Pisagua for the accident.

FORCED BY GRATITUDE OF HUNDREDS

To Repeat His Offer

Of Jan. 27 in the Boston American.

I have been so moved the past few weeks by the gratitude of readers that I have decided to make again the offer which I made in the Sept. 24 issue. This is what I said: "I am going to Give Away a Free Treatment for Deafness, to every sufferer who asks for it."

People by the hundred have come to my office, and letters of request have poured in; letters of grateful thanks have also poured in. From every part of the continent, the people whom I have cured of that terrible affliction—Deafness — are thanking me.

A letter from Brooklyn says, "Allow me to thank you a thousand times for the good hearing you have restored to me." A letter from Chicago says, "I bless the day I saw your offer, for you have cured me of Deafness."

Deafness Treatment Free

These many letters of gratitude have touched my heart, and so I say again to the readers of the Evening Journal: "I will give away a free treatment for Deafness to every sufferer who calls at my office or who writes for it."

This offer can only be made for a very short time. If you are Deaf, or have any trouble with your ears, come or write for a Free Treatment.

This treatment is entirely free. I want to help you. I know what you suffer in the approach of Deafness, and the intolerable agony of complete Deafness. I know that I have cured many, many people who were Deaf. I want you to have the same opportunity to hear again. Send now a postcard or letter request. Don't delay, or it may be too late. If you have even the slightest feeling that something is wrong with your ears, be on the safe side and send for treatment. It won't cost you anything. If you are growing Deaf, and have become discouraged and tired of experimenting, profit by the example of those who have been cured by my treatment. Many of these people thought they never could be cured, they tried so many different things which never did them any good. MY treatment restored their hearing.

Send to Dr. Edward Gardner, Suite 463, 38 West [illegible]d st., New York City, and get the Free Treatment.

HUNT BANDITS IN MOUNTAINS

HILLSVILLE, Va., March 16.—In the little red brick courthouse of Carroll County the machinery of the law was today restored to its orderly operation, which had been shattered on Thursday when the Allen gang swooped down from the Blue Ridge Mountains and killed Judge Massie, Commonwealth's Attorney Foster and Sheriff Webb. Court convened with Judge Staples, who had been especially commissioned by Governor Mann, on the bench and with armed deputy sheriffs stationed about the building to prevent a recurrence of the tragedy.

But while law and order were again settling down in the little county seat 100 men deputized by the court into an official posse was scouting the mountains under Detectives Baldwin and Feltz for other members of the gang whose gun play in the courthouse has resulted in another murder being added to the score of the outlaws, nineteen-year-old Nancy Elizabeth Ayers, a witness, having died of her wounds.

The Allen clansmen are gathering in the mountain recesses and a desperate battle is expected when the detectives come upon the mountaineer army.

Armed Men Guard Jail.

The bullet-riddled body of Mrs. Sidna Allen, who was shot to death yesterday defending her husband against capture in their mountain cabin, remained there today with a few weeping women relatives gathered about it. The men were afraid to venture near, and the women did not hesitate to breathe threats of vengeance against the authorities.

Forty armed men guard the Carroll jail, in which Floyd Allen, the desperado whose conviction in court precipitated the mountain warfare, lies suffering from seventeen wounds. In the same jail are Sidna Allen, Victor Allen, a son of Floyd; Caball Strickland and Byrd Marion, the last two being held as witnesses.

The Grand Jury was convened today at the call of Attorney-General Williams to return indictments against the members of the gang. The case against the mountaineers was presented by S. F. Landreth of Galax, Va., who has been appointed Commonwealth's attorney for the time being.

Feeling was heightened by the funeral today of William Foster, late Commonwealth's attorney, who was buried from the little Presbyterian Church of Hillsville, of which he was a member.

Pathetic Scene at Funeral.

The pathetic and solemn scene of the funeral was in strange contrast with the man hunt which is in progress in the mountains just a few miles away. Rains have turned the roads to deep mud and streams are out of their banks, adding hardships to a task of extreme danger.

Knowing that they are penetrating a dangerous region, where the rule of the Winchester holds sway, progress is painfully slow and cautious. The posse has come upon a number of deserted cabins, showing that the male occupants have joined the gun-fighting army of mountaineers, which will battle to the death before they will surrender.

SNAKES BANISHED AT TONY BIDDLE'S ST. PATRICK'S DAY FEAST

PHILADELPHIA, March 16.—A. J. Drexel Biddle, millionaire clubman, never loved the conventional. He did not want to have his St. Patrick's Day feast on the Sabbath, so Tony gave his luncheon in advance.

And the snakes! They were the real kind—little green ones which emerged from small green boxes and which wiggled across the table.

At the moment the snakes were released, a man made up as St. Patrick entered the room and, waving a wand, banished the reptiles, which were taken away by the servants. The snakes were of so bright a green that it was evident they had been dyed.

The host presented scarf pins to his guests, who were Charles Dalmores, Alfred Sergeant, Daniel Hutchinson 3d, Dr. James M. Anders, Howard Shelley, William Rocap, Joseph Hagan and Mr. Buckman.

Thought Quincy Man Robbing Own Home

Pretty tough luck to have to prove you're not a burglar just because you've come home unexpected, but that's what happened to Charles W. Swenning of Quincy. Swenning came home to his Taylor street house after being away a few days. He was congratulating himself on being in out of the storm, when a sergeant and two policemen came pounding on the door. In the name of the law Mr. Swenning let them in. Then he argued with them and convinced them that he was not a burglar.

STRAUSS WORK BY SYMPHONY

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Director Fiedler of the Symphony Orchestra offered Strauss' Symphonia Domestica at yesterday's concert. Mr. Fiedler admires Strauss and extends his admiration to the Domestica.

Not all of us share it and we are glad when we saw that it came last on the program, but Mr. Fiedler, determined to let no guilty man escape, changed the order at the last minute, placing it before the piano concerto.

The concerto was Beethoven's Number 5 in E flat major and the soloist was Wilhelm Bachaus, who appeared here in recital earlier in the season. Weber's Der Freischutz Overture completed the program.

The Strauss tone poem has been discussed often enough. Some people think it describes a family man in his home and some think it describes almost anything else, but as music its originality and strangeness make it interesting if not entertaining.

Bachaus appears to better advantage in a big hall with an orchestra than in recital. He is one of the whacking, thumping kind of pianists, a man of steel arms and prodigious technique. In a small hall he is overpowering.

In Symphony Hall with the orchestra he was extremely satisfying. He has intelligence, emotion and magnetism and he awakened much enthusiasm.

"Germania" was sung at the Opera last night for the second time. The cast did not differ from the first performance, except that Polese sang the baritone role of Worms instead of Pasquale Amato. The splendid production which Boston has given this opera was appreciated by a large audience and its many excellences were not overlooked.

Zenatello sang splendidly as Frederick. Polese was excellent as Worms. Madame Melis and Miss Fisher repeated their success of last week and the rest of the cast was adequate.

ORGANIZED LABOR

Declares War Upon the White Plague

Organized labor is beginning to make systematic warfare upon the great white plague, tuberculosis, which carries off more of our population than any other disease. Better housing conditions, cleanliness, fresh air and sanitary workshops are demanded as the means of preventing the spread of this malady.

It is generally acknowledged by the medical profession that tuberculosis in its advanced stages is not curable by medication. But colds, coughs and inflammations of the membranes of the throat and lungs, which so often develop into consumption, are said to yield readily to the healing action of virgin oil of pine, which is prepared with scientific purity by the Leach Chemical Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The contents of a half-ounce vial, added to two ounces of glycerine and eight ounces of pure whiskey, will make a year's supply of cough medicine which will cure any cold that is curable. The ingredients may be secured at any drug store, and mixed at home.

How to Solve the Rush Season Delivery Problem

Everyone knows that it is foolish to work a horse to death. Ten hours a day is a mighty long day for a horse. If you work a horse that long you ought to rest him one day out of every five. You get better results in the end.

But there are times in the year when it's rush work to make delivery —Christmas, Special Sales, Spring Seasons, Summer Seasons, The Fall, The Winter.

Every business has its seasons and at the top of each season the problem of delivery is difficult.

Now the solution is not by working the horses from dawn until midnight. That is false economy—and your horses under such pressure rapidly lessen their days of usefulness.

Consider Alco motor trucks. They can work twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, right through the severest rush of the severest season.

It has been demonstrated in Philadelphia. An Alco truck in the service of the Adams Express Company ran night and day for one hundred and forty-four hours. It was the week before Christmas. This truck delivered 450,000 pounds of merchandise.

There are many other similar instances. An Alco truck ran continuously in New York—three hundred and thirty-six hours without the motor stopping—for the United States Express Company.

Think this over and anticipate your next rush season by looking over the Alco truck now.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

PRICES GO DOWN IN NEW YORK AND BOSTON MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS

STATE STREET, March 16.—Closing—Coppers and most other stocks declined in price in the Boston market today and in New York the recession was more pronounced than at any time since the recent bull movement began. Sixteen leading stocks there averaged 15-16 lower than at the close yesterday.

Locally East Boston Land closed higher, as did also Nipissing, which today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 5 per cent, and the usual quarterly extra dividend of 2½ per cent. Cash on hand and ready ore assets of the company total $1,468,000. Among the coppers, Shannon was also higher. Amalgamated closed 1⅜ lower, and Anaconda and American Smelters were off a point each.

Illinois Central slumped 3½ points today, making a net loss of 7⅝ in two days. Canadian Pacific closed 2½ lower. The Harriman lines were off more than a point each at the finish. Steel ended 1¼ lower and the two big coal roads were down a point or more.

In the New York list two exceptions in a down-grade market were Missouri Pacific, up 1⅛, and National Lead, which closed fractionally higher.

London markets were weak today.

The price of electrolytic copper has been generally advanced to 14¾ cents.

There was heavy selling of stocks in New York this morning on foreign account.

Security Prices Slump in N. Y.

The New York market opened with a downward movement, in which Canadian Pacific may be called a leader. It declined two points in early transactions, opening 1⅜ lower and then declining ⅝ further. Stock traders attributed the recession in prices which affected the majority of issues, railroads, industrials and specialties all being pressed for sale, to reports by cable regarding the British coal strike and other European labor situations.

For a time pronounced weakness was shown throughout the list, but later scattered buying by shorts caused a rally. Among the losses in the first fifteen minutes of trading were the following: United States Steel common, ⅝; Amalgamated Copper, ⅞; American Smelter, ⅝; Southern Pacific, 1; Southern Railway, ¼; Erie common, ¾; Erie first preferred, ¼; Atchison, ⅝; Reading, ⅜; Union Pacific, ½. Pennsylvania opened with a slight fractional gain. Lehigh Valley, after losing ¾, made a recovery.

The Curb was dull and heavy.

Weak cables resulted in the New York cotton market opening 4 to 7 points lower, but even at this the response was not as full as it would have been had the shorts not rallied to the support of the market with covering orders.

Some of the buying here was induced by the reports of the frost over the belt. After the call there was an advance of about four points. Futures were steady in Liverpool and spot prices were easier.

Copper Metal at the Week End.

It is stated that copper metal consumers in this country have not yet bought all the supplies they need for the near future and producers are apparently of the belief that prices are going to still further advance. Sales above 14⅝ cents were booked yesterday for May electrolytic. Europe wants more copper in spite of unsettled industrial conditions on the other side of the Atlantic. Now the producers are in a much better position than for a long, long time. Exports of copper for the first two weeks in March totalled 11,690 tons, compared with 12,196 for the same period in 1911. Phelps, Dodge & Co. report total copper sales in 1911 of 158,900,257 pounds of electrolytic and 21,401,708 pounds of casting ingot. The average price received was 12.36 cents per pound, as against an average of 12.826 received in 1910. The total receipts were $7,283,508, a decrease of $1,816,401, and the balance after dividends $1,734,302, a decrease of $1,713,211. The ore extracted from the mines owned by Phelps, Dodge & Co. amounted to 1,841,219 tons.

The Business Outlook at Present.

The severity of the Winter just over has had a very depressing effect upon retail trade because it has been difficult for salesmen to cover routes "on the road" and in rural regions farmers have found it hard to get to town and do the usual trading. The stocks of country stores, and for that matter the stocks of city stores, are pretty well depleted. Merchants, big and little, have been buying just as small amounts of merchandise as possible. Now that Spring is here an improvement in all lines of trade is looked for. This is shown by existing conditions in the wholesale and jobbing circles in the big distributing marts. There must be considerable buying by retailers and the only detriments to an improvement in over-the-counter transactions are the prospects of labor troubles. If there is a coal strike it will deter general business some. If the locomotive engineers on the fifty Eastern roads who have asked for a pay raise do not get it and go out, that proceeding will of course diminish transportation facilities. The prompt delivery of goods to retailers is of great importance. Storekeepers want their orders filled when the season's demand is on; otherwise they can get no market for their wares. The engineers ask for pay raises ranging from 15 to 38 per cent. They want their wages made equal to those received by engineers in the West. Railroad managers say that to grant the men's demand will cost the roads about $10,000,000 and that earnings of the affected lines will not permit this extra expenditure.

People Have Been Saving Money.

While the public has been absent from stock exchanges for many months, it has been conspicuous at savings banks and savings association quarters. The records of stock markets and saving institutions show, when compared, that the people have been more economical and thrifty than speculative. The increase in the resources of local savings and loan associations in New York reported to the Banking Department in that State amounted to $3,456,527 in 1910 and $4,057,103 in 1911.

The Future Control of Erie.

Wall Street and State Street would like to know what changes in the control of the Erie road may or may not be pending. Erie issues have gone up this week in a way that could not fail to give rumor circulators a large field for operation. It is denied by an Erie official that either the Canadian Pacific or Great Northern are seeking control of Erie. It had been said in speculative circles that accumulations in Erie stock had been made in the interests of one or the other of the two first mentioned roads. One story is to the effect that James J. Hill is after enough Erie common to be able to combine it with the Great Northern and Burlington roads and has as a result "the first real transcontinental line possessed by any one system in this country."

Financial News in Brief.

January was the worst month Illinois Central has had in many years. Its gross earnings decreased $1,234,000 and net earnings were $1,154,000 behind those of the same period in 1911. The price of Illinois Central broke 3⅝ points yesterday on the sale of about 2,000 shares. On the strength of earnings reports bears used it in an attempt to break the market.

Judge R. S. Lovett of the Harriman lines is not expected to be at his New York office before Monday. He is suffering from a cold.

The Transatlantic Trust Co. which has filed a certificate of incorporation in Albany, is to represent large Hungarian investments in the United States. Its capital is fixed at $700,000 and it will begin business in New York with $350,000 surplus. James G. Cannon and Stuyvesant Fish are among the incorporators.

During February the agricultural exports of the United States were $6,853,000 more in value than in the same month in 1911.

Stockholders in thirty-seven transportation and industrial corporations have just received dividend checks amounting to $12,500,000. Of the number the Buckeye Pipe Line and the Crescent Pipe Line; offshoots of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, paid dividends for the first time. The largest disbursement was $4,919,150 and made by Standard Oil pf. of New Jersey.

Orders for a total of 172 locomotives were placed yesterday, and among the roads they are to be used by are the Atchison, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Norfolk & Western and Chicago Great Western. Seventy are for the Atchison and thirty-three for Harriman lines, while the Pennsylvania will take forty-eight.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has placed an order for 11,000 tons of open hearth rails with the Pennsylvania Steel Co.

Pig iron has gone up from 20 to 50 cents a ton since big steel producers began buying a few weeks ago.

MRS. TINGLEY TO FIGHT VERDICT IN NOTED WILL CASE

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 16.—After a bitter contest, in which he charged that his mother, Mrs. Harriet Thurston, was influenced when she made her will bequeathing an estate valued at $247,000 to Mrs. Katherine Tingley, the "Purple Mother," and head of the Universal Brotherhood and Theosophical Society of Point Loma, and Newburyport, Mass., George L. Patterson, a banker of Newcastle, Pa., by a jury verdict of ten to two, has succeeded in having the will set aside.

Mrs. Tingley was in court when the verdict was announced. Her counsel says that the case will be appealed and the contest carried on to the bitter end.

FIVE LIVES LOST AS THE GLOUCESTER SINKS A SCHOONER

LAUREL, Del., March 16.—Five men lost their lives today when the Merchants and Miners' liner Gloucester sank the four-masted schooner Herbert Maxwell. The victims were Mate Aloy Quillin, Mate Kopp, two seamen and the cook. So quickly did the schooner fill the men were trapped.

The Gloucester was bound to Baltimore from Boston. The Maxwell sailed from Baltimore on March 14. The Gloucester was badly damaged, and extensive repairs will have to be made to her hull and superstructure.

DON'T REMAIN BALD

Don't wait until you have combed out all your hair before using the Koskott Treatment. Don't wear false hair.

READ every word of this if your hair is thinning, falling out, if turning gray, if you have dandruff, or are becoming bald. Probably you have tried various tonics, lotions, shampoos, outfits, treatments, etc., without success. Why? Because they are wrong in principle; some of them actually promote baldness. If you tried, you know. Modern scientists have absolutely proved the existence of one of the smallest parasites known to science, dermodex folliculorum. It gets on the scalp from combs, brushes, etc., that have been used by other people. They gather around hair follicles, exist upon the hair and its natural oil. The hair becomes weak and falls out, leaving the roots, which are soon stifled in morbid matter and covered by seborrhea. The dermodex folliculorum, like all microbes or infinitesimally small parasites, multiplies rapidly. This causes the falling of hair and baldness. By ridding the scalp of these minute "germs," and promoting the natural feeding of the hair roots by pure blood and natural oils, the roots which have been dormant in the follicles, or under shell-like cover of morbid matter, are able to again send forth long, vigorous, healthy hairs. Imagine, please, a bulb or root of a plant corked tightly in a bottle; it will remain so for years until the bottle is uncorked and elements provided to permit growth. So it is with hair. Nothing can cause hair to grow from a root that is dead. BUT DON'T BE TOO SURE IT IS DEAD, even if you have been bald for years. Many proven cases show that hair is grown after a person has been bald for many years—the true reason being that the dormant "corked-in" roots were finally given a chance to perform their natural functions again. Koskott Treatment often succeeds where all others fail; most wonderful hair-growing Method. Legions of testimonials.

Let us send you proofs that Koskott has grown hair after many years of baldness, that ladies with short and scanty hair have had new growth reaching below the waist.

Dermodex Folliculorum, Greatly Magnified.

THIS KILLS YOUR HAIR

Koskott Treatment contains specially selected and scientifically compounded ingredients, the purpose of which is to quickly and gently clear the scalp and follicle apertures of the dermodex folliculorum and seborrhea and to cause the dormant roots to be properly nourished through the blood & oils, just as nature intends. A light, downy growth is often discerned within a few days, this develops rapidly into beautiful SOFT, HEALTHY HAIR of natural color. Prove it yourself. NO MORE DANDRUFF. NO FALSE HAIR. NO BALDNESS.

We want to send the book that tells about Koskott; we ask you to write for it at once. It will be sent in plain wrapper, absolutely FREE (with proofs), postpaid. You will say it is the best book on hair you ever read. We know you will be be astonished & delighted. Do not waste time, act now. Save your hair. Every day counts. Address:

MEXICAN MOB HOLDS YANKEES

MEXICO CITY, March 16.—That Americans in Tampico are in serious danger was revealed today in messages received by Ambassador Wilson. Riots have occurred and officials of the Tampico Navigation Company are in the hands of the mobs. Rioters gathered in the streets and made a demonstration against the foreign residents.

As yet no violence has been done them, but the attitude of the mob is ugly and it is feared the rioters may endeavor to loot the foreign quarter. There is a large colony of Americans in Tampico. They are reported armed and ready to resist attack. It is reported Ometepec, on the Pacific coast has been sacked and several foreign residents killed. Conditions in Acapulco and Guerrero are serious.

Refugees from Vera Cruz and Tampico say hundreds of Americans have been forced to close up their business at a great loss and flee for safety.

LET US MAKE YOU FAT

50-Cent Box Free!

We Will Prove at Our Own Expense That It Is No Longer Necessary to Be Thin, Scrawny and Undeveloped.

WE INVITE EVERY THIN MAN and WOMAN HERE

Every Reader of the Boston American Who Is Run Down, Nervous or Underweight, to Get Fat at Our Expense.

"Gee! Look at that pair of skinny scarecrows! Why don't they try Sargol?"

This is a generous offer to every thin man or woman reader in Boston and vicinity. We positively guarantee to increase your weight to your own satisfaction or no pay. Think this over—think what it means. At our own risk, we offer to put 10, 15, yes, 30 pounds of good, solid "stay there" flesh on your bones, to fill out hollows in cheeks, neck or bust, to get rid of that "peaked" look, to rejuvenate and revitalize your whole body until it tingles with vibrant energy; to do this without drastic diet, "tonics," severe physical culture, "stunts," detention from business or any irksome requirements—if we fail it costs you nothing.

We particularly wish to hear from the excessively thin, those who know the humiliation and embarrasment which only skinny people have to suffer in silence. We want to send a free 50-cent package of our new discovery to the people who are called "slats" and "bean poles," to bony women, whose clothes never look "anyhow," no matter how expensively dressed, to the skinny men who fail to gain social or business recognition on account of their starved appearance. We care not whether you have been thin from birth, whether you have lost flesh through sickness, how many flesh builders you have experimented with. We take the risk and assume it cheerfully. If we can not put pounds and pounds of healthy flesh on your frame we don't want your money.

How can we do this? We will tell you. Science has discovered a remarkable concentrated treatment which increases cell growth, the very substance of which our bodies are made—a treatment that makes indigestion and other stomach troubles disappear as if by magic and makes an old dyspeptic or a sufferer from weak nerves or lack of vitality feel like a 2-year-old. This new treatment, which has proved a boon to every thin person, is called Sargol. Don't forget the name—"S-A-R-G-O-L." Nothing like it has ever been produced before. It is a revelation to women who have never been able to appear stylish in anything they wore because of their thinness. It is a godsend to every man who is under weight or is lacking in nerve force or energy. If you want a beautiful and well-rounded figure of symmetrical proportions, of which you can feel justly proud—if you want a body full of throbbing life and energy, write The Sargol Company, 138-P, Herald Building, Binghamton, N. Y., today, and we will send you, absolutely free, a 50c. box of Sargol that will prove all we claim. Take one with every meal, and in five minutes after you take the first concentrated tablet of this precious product it will commence to unfold its virtues, and it has by actual demonstration often increased the weight at the rate of one pound a day. But you say you want proof. Well, here you are. Here is the statement of those who tried—who have been convinced—and who will swear to the virtues of this marvelous preparation:

What Sargol Has Done for Others

When we mail you the Free 50-cent package of Sargol, we will send you copies of letters received from grateful patrons, reporting actual gains in solid healthy permanent flesh of from ten to over thirty pounds.

We give here a few interesting figures from reports which are being received daily:

REV. GEORGE W. DAVIS says:

"I have made a faithful trial of the Sargol treatment and must say it has brought to me new life and vigor. I have gained twenty pounds and now weigh 170 pounds, and what is better, I have gained the days of my boyhood. It has been the turning point of my life. My health is now fine. I don't have to take any medicine at all and never want to again."

MRS. A. I. RODENHEISER writes:

"I have gained immensely since I took Sargol, for I only weighed about 106 pounds when I began using it and now I weigh 130 pounds, so really this means 24 pounds. I feel stronger and am looking better than ever before, and now I carry rosy cheeks, which is something I could never say before.

"My old friends who have been used to seeing me with a thin, long face, say that I am looking better than they have ever seen me before, and father and mother are so well pleased to think I have got to look so well and weigh so heavy for me."

F. GAGNON writes:

"Here is my report since taking the Sargol treatment. I am a man 67 years of age and was all run down to the very bottom. I had to quit work as I was so weak. Now, thanks to Sargol, I look like a new man. I gained 22 pounds with 26 days' treatment. I cannot tell you how happy I feel. All my clothes are getting too tight. My face has a good color and I never was so happy in my life."

FINALS BOWLED
TODAY IN AMERICAN'S
TITLE TOURNAMENT

Bowling Stars Roll in Finals

Poehler, Griffin and Johns the Champions

Title Tourney Decided Today

BOWLERS WHO WILL MEET IN FINAL TODAY.

PAUL POEHLER, Portsmouth, N. H., champion of New Hampshire.
TERRY GRIFFIN, Dorchester, one of Boston's star bowlers.
CLARENCE JOHNS, Gloucester, champion of the North Shore.

These are the three men who have fought their way into the final of the Boston American Bowling Championship Contest that is decided today at the New Boston Alleys, No. 167 Washington street, Boston.

W. Rogers, Boston, wins the $15 prize for the best five-string total, with a score of 581, his strings being 105, 109, 92, 132 and 143.

Surprises galore came as the result of the second day of bowling of the AMERICAN'S great prize contest, but the biggest of all was when John A. Christopher went down to defeat before R. Pratt of Malden in the second division of the first semi-final.

When "Cris" slid into the semi-finals by a scant margin from the elimination round his admirers boasted that it was all he required in going right through to the finish, and earning the title of champion candlepin bowler of New England.

Then, when he was paired with Pratt the wise ones considered his winning such a cinch they barely gave the encounter a thought, until the fourth string, when "Cris" found the footing very bad, allowing his oponent a big lead with only another string in which to recover himself.

Christopher Unable To Pull Down Lead.

But Pratt was a cool proposition under the firing line, for he put up some very clever bowling, so much so that "Cris" was only capable of eating up eight pins of the lead with his grand finish of 79 pins in the last four boxes, the totals being 553 to 545.

Pratt bowls in the Suburban League, but it is a safe bet that he rolled the best match of his career against Christopher, and deserves a lot of credit for having the nerve to do it, when the majority of young bowlers would have considered themselves defeated at the very start and rolled accordingly.

Of the three men in the final the clever work of Paul Poehler in his tournament games has attracted a lot of notice with the experts. In the elimination round he was on the same alley and time as Walter Kirk, and had a hard time in getting the most pins.

He was then drawn against Kirk in the first semi-final, and the latter was right to Poehler all of the distance, the test ending with the Portsmouth wonder only thirteen pins to the good, the score being 557 to 544.

In the second semi-final Poehler had Joe Spillane of Dorchester to combat. This was the former's only easy match, as Spillane was badly off form. Poehler's good bowling landed him a score of 574, which stood for a short time the best made for five strings.

In the third semi-final Poehler was drawn to meet George McConville, champion of Maine. McConville in the tourney had been rolling at the best of speed, getting in the elimination round 560, which mark he raised to 564 in the first semi-final with A. Gibson.

Bill Beatty Coaches Griffin to Victory

When the announcement was made that Poehler and McConville were to battle in the third semi-final the large audience wildly applauded, realizing the vast importance of the result, for one of the two must go to the woods.

It was a tussle for fair. The cracks went at each other hammer and tongs, McConville getting a lead of eleven pins in the first string. At the close of the second string Poehler had gone to the front with a lead of nine pins, and so it swung back and forth with the verdict in doubt till the last boxes of the fifth string.

Terry Griffin is one of Billy Beatty's pupils, the veteran being constantly nearby to coach the Dorchester representative. In the first semi-final Griffin had a tough nut to crack in A. Lavigne of Worcester. It appeared awfully bad for him at the end of the opening string, the bowler from the Heart of the Commonwealth securing a lead of forty pins.

Then Griffin began a long chase, and at the end of the third string had tied the score. It was then nip and tuck till the last three boxes in the fifth, when Griffin got enough to win by six pins.

Griffin had Pratt, victor of Christopher, in the second semi-final, and had no bother in taking the honors by sixty pins. Al Lucia of Lynn is always counted a hard man to beat, and he was Griffin's antagonist in the third semi-final, but the latter led from start to finish.

Johns Wins Match in Very Last Box Rolled

Clarence Johns, the other bowler in the final, had a narrow escape in the first semi-final with J. A. Fitzgerald, it taking to the last ball in the final box to determine the winner, and then the margin was but two pins.

He then tackled "Ducky" Holmes in the second semi-final, and gave the latter his quietus, the last string telling the story, when he rolled 121 to Holmes' 84, making him thirty-two pins to the good.

W. Rogers was drawn to meet the Gloucester crack in the third semi-final, and once more two pins stood him well in getting the verdict, small strings being the rule with both contestants.

There is a great interest in the meeting of these three in the final of twenty strings, the first ten strings this afternoon at 3 o'clock, and the remaining strings at 7 this evening. Poehler is the favorite, but nobody believes he will have a snap, particularly when it is considered the clip Griffin has been setting, while Johns is never safe in leaving out of the figuring.

Rogers Puts the Boy Wonder Off the Map.

Archie Walsh, the boy wonder with the candlepins, had far from a picnic in defeating J. Wentzell in the first semi-final, the latter holding a good lead with the beginning of the fourth string. The Salem star dropped off, however, in the last couple of strings, and Walsh was stacked against Rogers in the second semi-final.

Few had any idea that Rogers would wipe Archie off the map, but he not only did the trick but set up a five-string record of 581, good for the $15 going to the bowler getting the most pins in the number of strings named. In his last two strings Rogers scored 72 pins more than Walsh.

Previous to this Rogers had caused Sam Paige to go to grief. Paige went into the fifth string leading Rogers by just fifty pins, making it look like the affair was all over, but the latter, by giving the pins some terrible wallops, put one over in 157, the best single string to date, which proved enough to win by one pin from Paige. Johns, though, was Rogers' undoing in the third semi-final.

G. Russell of Roslindale had no trouble in throwing down F. Smith in the first semi-final, and then was obliged to throw up both hands to Al Lucia in the second semi-final, the pins going too rocky for him.

Spillane Runs Up Against a Big Snag

Joe Spillane romped away from F. Powers in the first semi-final, but was away off form when he went against Poehler, which caused his numerous friends much regret.

L. W. Stoddard was a very sturdy opponent, beating E. Colpitts with ease, and in the second semi-final causing McConville to exert himself to carry off the day by seven pins.

Al Lucia took Regan into camp, and then did the same to Russell, but met his master in Griffin in the third semi-final. Lucia is one of the very best bowlers Lynn has turned out, but his hand or eye lost its cunning in the last mentioned pin battle, only getting real good in the fifth string, when it proved too late to avail him anything.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company had the alleys in prime condition, as the high scores demonstrate. The pins they have supplied have also created favorable comment among the bowlers in the AMERICAN Bowling Contest.

Following is a complete summary of the day's events, showing what each bowler made in their strings, and the totals:

Here He Is--Duke Farrell--Back On the Job, Old Favorite, In His New Boston Uniform

"The Duke of Marlborough" and Big Cy Young were the two great rivals during the early practice season at Augusta. Both are veterans of the diamond, and they enjoy themselves by poking fun at the other's abilities as a diamond "come back."

"DUKE" FARRELL

RILEY'S COLUMN

IF the "Dope" holds out, Boston will see a pitching carnival when the Pilgrims and Quakers open the 1912 season, April 1, on the Walpole Street Grounds. Johnnie Kling counts on "Uncle Cy" Young to start the pace for the Pilgrims and Charlie Dooin, just to make it an even break in celebrities, counts on Alexander the great to begin the mill for the Phillies. Kling, of course, will be behind the bat for Boston. This combination of pitchers should make the opening day a smart success.

* * *

"CY" YOUNG discussed a catching machine at Augusta today. "During the Winter," he said, "I heard from a chap who declared he had invented a machine that would catch any delivery and would eliminate the backstop from baseball. Just why the catcher should be the victim of his brains, I don't know unless the fellow had a grudge against some of the old fellows like Charley Farrel here, who are still trying to make an honest dollar."

* * *

"WELL," said "the Duke of Marlborough," "that fellow has nothing on the guy that invented a pitching machine. They tried it out in Boston and it worked like a charm. It was better than some of those old lads like "Cy" who are hanging around picking up a few dollars, too, and keeping a lot of likely lads out of good jobs.

* * *

YOU could not hit that pitching machine once in twenty times and it only shot straight balls. It did not have so much speed as "Cy" either. The pitching machine, though, seemed to have more brains than most pitchers. If some of these guys would only try the old-fashioned straight ball they'd get their man oftener."

* * *

"THE only trouble with that catching machine," continued the Duke, "was that it could not nail a man at second. The pitching machine did everything that a pitcher does except bat, and whoever heard of a pitcher batting anyway."

* * *

"ALL right," said Cy, "but that catching machine could not catch anything outside of a radius of six inches. Of course, that's all some catchers can do, but if a pitcher had to keep in that space they'd nail him everytime."

* * *

"I'LL end that argument," replied the Duke, "by betting a five spot that no pitcher living could hit a six-inch mark once in twenty times, anyway, so the catching machine would not do any good." Cy had to admit that the Duke was right: in fact he admitted, seriously, that in his opinion, no pitcher could hit a foot circle more than three or four times in ten.

* * *

THE one alleged weakness of Jake Stahl's pitching staff is a lack of left handers. For the first time in years the Red Sox will go into the pennant chase with only two port side slingers—Eddie Collins and Leonard, a new one. Leonard's value, of course, is unknown, leaving the responsible left hand work to Collins. No big league team with pennant chasers has tried to get along with such a preponderance of right handers, and the experiment will be watched with interest.

* * *

STAHL will not be able to do much juggling with his opponents. But it is the writer's opinion that a team can win a pennant with right handers if they are pennant right handers. Offsided twirlers have as many weaknesses as they have points of strength, and only a few of them can be relied upon to work with any degree of consistency. This is a radical belief, but it will be demonstrated sometime by somebody—perhaps this year by the Red Sox.

* * *

THE Pilgrim training squad, newspaper men, Augusta "fans" and everybody in the Georgia city, who thinks he has anything to say about it, today unanimously elected Virginia Kling mascot of the Pilgrims. Little Virginia Kling is the six-year-old daughter of the new Boston manager. She is deeply interested in the team, knows all of the players intimately, has the game of baseball by heart and sees all of the games.

* * *

THE Pilgrims have a new team, new owners and a new manager. A new mascot was, therefore, in order. Nobody could fill the bill like the little girl.

The pick of Canada's hockey players, who are renowned the world over in this chief sport of the land across the border, will be seen in action in the series of four games which will be played at the Boston Arena, the first of which takes place tonight.

Tonight's match will be between the Wanderers and the Canadians, both of Montreal. The Wanderers are well known in Boston, having played here last year, and there will be a big crowd of fans present to give them a rousing reception. Although the Canadians have never played in Boston before, they are well known here by reputation. The Canadians are rated as one of the fastest hockey teams in the world, especially with regard to their speed on the ice, and tonight's game is sure to prove a whirlwind event. The teams are evenly matched and each will play their utmost to score a victory.

Merrimac Valley to Have New League

NEWBURYPORT, March 16.—The Merrimac Valley League is the name selected for the new baseball organization intended to embrace the cities and towns of this section.

Haverhill, Amesbury, Ipswich and Newburyport will be represented.

It is planned to have at least six teams in the league, and Merrimac will probably be invited to make one of the number. West Newbury may also come in.

Henry S. Brown of this city was elected president of the league, and Alfred Ray, also a Newburyporter, is secretary. It is hoped to open the season April 19.

LOWE NAMED TO HEAD ARLINGTON SEVEN

George H. Lowe, Arlington High School, 1913, has been elected to lead the hockey team next season. Lowe played at point and was unanimous choice for the all-scholastic player at that position. This year's team will be banqueted at the home of Lewis H. Cousens on Draper avenue, Arlington, tonight.

Pilgrim Players Flooded Out Boating Good, but No Baseball

By L. R. MURDOCH.

Sporting Edition American.

AUGUSTA, GA., March 16.—With the Savannah river threatening to flood the city and the Augusta baseball field under mud and water there was little prospect of an encounter between John Kling's regulars and Yannigans today. Thus ends two weeks of the training trip with only two games played, and less than fifteen full hours of out door practice.

The river continued rising all night and early today was not far from the flood point. Augustans who watched the stream all night recalled the freshet of 1908, when the river rose to thirty-eight feet nine inches and there were four feet of water in the streets and thirty or more lost their lives.

This morning the river was close to thirty-four feet and another foot rise would drive the water into the business section. The railroads were inundated and some of the streets nearer the river held water deep enough for boating due to the blocking up of sewers.

In the last big flood boating was a popular pastime as well as a mode of business communication and the Boston training squad retired last night expecting to get their fresh air today in some sort of craft.

BIG FLOOD OUTDOES BASEBALL.

In the 1908 flood the water rose to the top of the desks in the Augusta hotel lobbies and guests came and went in rowboats. Weather Forecaster Emigh, who is considered a wizard in Georgia, declared today that the river would probably keep within reasonable bounds and that no serious harm was likely.

The flood was the sole topic of conversation in Augusta today and all the Boston Nationals had to do this morning was to wander to the front and commence like the natives: "She's gone up six inches more," etc.

Johnny Kling, Hank Gowdy, Bill Sweeney and one or two others took an occasional turn at billiards. Doc Miller, Vin Campbell, Jeff Pfeffer and Otto Hess covered all the dry spots in Georgia and South Carolina walking. Bill Jones scouted to and fro from the river carrying bulletins for the baseball squad.

Donnelly, McDonald and Thorne had a long discussion of a battle in a Virginia courtroom the other day wherein a bunch of mountain youths rode in and when their pal was sentenced to jail shot everybody in sight.

"We'll have to get through that country," said "Hickory Jackson" by way of encouragement. When Hickory is home in Texas, he is reputed to carry a bunch of heavy artillery himself.

James Connolly, vice-president of the club, made a personally conducted tour of a big cotton warehouse on the banks of the river and watched them jam big bunches of cotton into little ones.

Mr. Connolly allowed that it would be a good plan to run the ball park through the press so as to squeeze out the water and mud.

By the way, James has won, for the time being, a battle that every other baseball man in Augusta lost before Connolly's arrival. At the hotel Albion is a certain young woman who belongs to some sort of a new organization that objects to eating anything that is killed.

This young woman aired her views to the various baseball players who sat at her table and they answered promptly and moved away.

PURDUE, ALSO, SICK WITH THE GRIP.

But, enter C. James Connolly of Boston. Somebody put up a job with the headwaiter to initiate the veteran magnate, and C. James drew the seat next to the determined young woman. Now it happened that C. James made his first appearance on Friday. At breakfast he ordered eggs; at luncheon fish and at dinner fish again.

You should have seen that young woman beam. Also you should have absorbed the look of consternation on C. James' face when the young woman began to tell him what a "lovely gentleman" he was.

C. James Connolly is due for an awakening at dinner tonight because somebody overheard him say this afternoon that his mouth was watering for a big, juicy beefsteak smothered with onions.

Hub Perdue is in bed again today suffering from the grip. He was out late yesterday afternoon but soon a high fever developed and before a physician could be summoned his temperature went up to 103. Perdue arrived here last Sunday the healthiest-looking man in the bunch. Today he looks desperately sick and is suffering keenly.

Aside from Perdue, the squad continues today in excellent health and condition, but the young players chafed to get out on the diamond. They are tired of moving picture shows and stuffy billiard rooms. Their only consolation is that all the other league teams are having equally hard luck with the weather man.

Hornblower Named Olympic Treasurer

Henry Hornblower of Arlington, an ardent devotee of amateur sport, has been named by Governor Foss as treasurer of the New England Olympic fund.

Governor Foss in his letter to Mr. Hornblower expresses the earnest request that the tender of office be accepted. He also appeals to the athletic-loving people of New England to subscribe liberally to the fund. The Governor was requested by the New England finance committee of the Olympic games to designate a treasurer.

PAINE BOOSTS "GRAD" COACHING AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, March 16.—Ralph D. Paine, who was graduated from Yale in 1894 and who stroked the university crew in his senior year, in an interview in the Yale News praises the return by the Yale athletic authorities to graduate coaching in rowing and baseball, and condemns the departure from that system, which he believes brought about Yale's defeats in recent years. Referring particularly to rowing, he says that the Bob Cook stroke was good enough to beat Harvard year after year and is good enough to beat Harvard again.

HOPPE OUT FOR RETURN MATCH

NEW YORK, March 16.—Willie Hoppe, who was defeated for the 18.1 billiard title by George Sutton at the Hotel Astor, 500 to 374, will again challenge for the title. One of the greatest crowds that ever witnesed a billiard match crowded the room.

Willie Hoppe did not show up to his usual form and is not satisfied with his showing, so he asks another chance. His stroke seemed a bit uncertain and his playing was shaky.

Sutton played a very steady game and completed his 500 points in the fifteenth inning with a run of three. Sutton had high runs of 104, 69 and 30 and he pulled off some very brilliant shots.

BURNS IS BEATEN BY "PACKEY" M'FARLAND

KENOSHA, Wis., March 16.—Packey McFarland of Chicago decisively defeated Kid Burns of New York here, Burns' seconds throwing up the sponge in the eighth of what had been scheduled for a ten-round bout. McFarland completely outclassed the Easterner and appeared able to land at will.

Burns fought gamely in the first three rounds, but it was plain from the start that he was not in Packey's class, and it was only in the second round that they divided honors equally, all the others going to McFarland by a good margin.

McFarland rushed matters from the first, several times having Burns against the ropes, raining blows upon him, with Burns apparently unable to make any return.

Red Sox Line Up With Phillies Big Baseball Battle on Today

By H. B. SCHULTZ.

Special American Correspondent With the Red Sox.

HOT SPRINGS, March 16.—Glorious weather greeted the Red Sox and Phillies this afternoon for their first exhibition game of the season. The sun has dried out the field, which was a great relief after the long continued muddy spell. The men lined up on Fogel Field, which is the home of the Phillies.

Neither the Red Sox or the Phillies have been able to do a great deal of practice so far this season and as a result some of the players are not in the best of condition. But regardless of this fact a fast and close game was expected.

Manager Jake Stahl had his men out for two hours of practice in the morning. Many of the players complained of sore arms. Three pitchers will probably be used against the Phillies.

Wagner may not get into the game today. Heinie says that his "wing" is in perfect condition, but Stahl does not intend to take any chances with his star infielder at this early date. If Wagner is as good as he claims to be, the shortstop position will be taken care of to the queen's taste.

TO USE YOUNG PITCHERS TODAY.

Bill Carrigan, Charley Hall and Jake Stahl are in better condition than the other members of the team. They have been here longer and have had more opportunities to practice.

President McAleer and his wife arrived in town this morning and turned out to witness today's game with the Phillies. McAleer believes that the Red Sox will be represented by a strong team this season.

Manager Stahl will give some of his untried material a chance to show their ability.

Anderson, Leonard and Hageman will share in the try-out on the slab for the Red Sox. Stahl says he picked the first two to pitch because both have been working this Winter and chose Hageman because "Casey" revealed splendid power in the workout yesterday.

It is possible that Stahl may use only Leonard and Anderson in the box, though he may decide to play the trio for three innings each in the game.

Krug is the only new comer who is left out, Goodman and Shinn both getting an opportunity today, the former at second and the latter at short. Goodman is an excellent batsman, with a great snap to his stick, which accounts for his upper place in the batting order between Henrikson and Stahl. Shinn is nifty on his feet and has also hit well in practice.

For the Phillies, but one strange face will appear in the makeup of the team, and that is Ben Hunt, who pitched for the Boston Americans two years ago. Peaches Graham, who was formerly hitched up with the Boston Nationals, is Dooin's auxiliary catcher for the game.

The coming of the Pittsburgs has added materially to the number of baseball celebrities here, bringing to town Manager Clarke "Honus" Wagner, Marty O'Toole, who has the reputation of being the highest-priced player in the land, and Mike Donlin.

WORKOUT SHOWS SOX IN FINE TRIM.

The team has just finished a two weeks' stay at West Baden, where the training was mostly done in a gymnasium. Clarke says his bunch looks good to him. The manager took occasion today to repeat his statement that he does not intend to play any more baseball, being content to do the managing from the bench.

O'Toole, the South Framingham lad and former Brockton player, is in good health, weighs in at 175, and his admirers say his condition is such as to show later that he was well worth the $22,500 paid for him.

Owner Dreyfus of the team arrives here today, being expected in on the same train that brings "Jimmie" McAleer. The latter is to have a talk with Nunamaker about terms, and the result my be that "Nuny" will sign up.

The Red Sox work out this morning for a couple of hours as a preliminary to the game in the afternoon. The four catchers, Carrigan, Cady, Nunamaker and Thomas, make up one of the finest backstop aggregations in the country.

Bradley, Goodman, Shinn and Engle were given an infield workout and the showing was superb. A similar workout was given Stahl, Yerkes, Wagner and Gardner, the regulars in infield positions, and here again the showing was made of prime strength.

The outfield is also strong, and when one takes into consideration the variety of style of the pitching staff and their effectiveness, the conclusion can easily be drawn that the Red Sox are comers. They are all young players who are destined without doubt to make their mark, and by collective work make a high mark for the team in the pennant race this year.

CAMPBELL THE VICTOR.

PHILADELPHIA, March 16.—William Campbell of this city defeated Charles McCourt of Pittsburg in a National three-cushion amateur billiard game by a score of 50 to 42 in 77 innings. Campbell had two runs of 4 and one of 5. McCourt's best run was 3.

WORCESTER, March 16.—"One Round" Hogan of San Francisco and Young Sullivan of St. Paul come together tonight for ten rounds at the Lake Shore A. A. Kid Alberts of New York and Walter Hennessey of Philadelphia will be the stars in the semi-final.

Young O'Neil of Woonsocket and Mickey Devlin of Providence meet in the six round curtain raiser.

Cooking Secrets of a Famous Chef

HOW TO MAKE FINE SAUCES AND OTHER RELISHES

By EMILE BAILLY

THE moment you talk of French cooking you summon up thoughts of marvellous sauces.

The sauce is pre-eminently French, but nowadays it is a much-abused addition to cooking.

There are many hundreds of sauces. Every good cook has created one, at least; but all of these sauces are made from one of three sauces—called in French "les sauces meres"—the mother sauces.

These sauces are:

Sauce Bechamel.

Sauce Allemande or German sauce.

Sauce Espagnole or Spanish sauce.

Of course, every hotel and restaurant keeps these principal sauces on hand all the time, so that all orders for different sauces can be filled at once, but it is a good idea for a housekeeper when making one of these sauces to put some of it away for future use.

Carefully strained and placed on the ice, the sauces will keep some time, and of course they are always valuable in fixing up dishes and leftovers.

There is an art in cooking, a gift which only the born cook possesses and which no amount of teaching will impart. This gift shows itself especially in preparing sauces. I can give the same recipe to twenty assistants and every one will make it just a little different, but the born cook will have a sauce which is perfection.

Bechamel sauce was first made by the Marquis of Bechamel, who rose very high in the estimation of his master, Louis XIV. of France, because of the sauce he invented. It is made in this way: Take 275 grammes of butter and 300 grammes of flour (31 grammes make an ounce). Wet this with 4 quarts of boiling milk and boil it gently for three hours. Add seasoning (mirepoix, see below), rub through a sieve and beat it thoroughly. Place a piece of butter on top to keep it smooth. Let it thicken if it is to be kept for some time, but be sure that it is perfectly smooth.

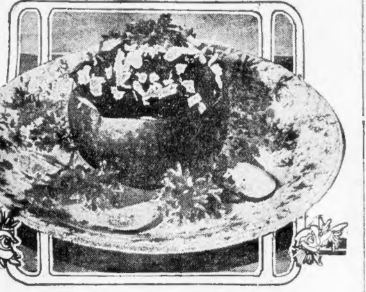
LOBSTER SAUTE WITH RICE

An easy way to make this delicious dish is fully described in the accompanying article by M. Bailly.

SAUCE ALLEMANDE.

Take some white stock made of veal bones and left over fowl; add water, carrots and onions stuck with cloves, a bouquet of kitchen greens, several grains of pepper and salt. Let it boil three hours and strain through muslin into a saucepan. Have ready 200 grammes of butter and 250 grammes of flour. Melt together and cook for a few minutes without letting it get brown; add three quarts of the white stock described above and let it boil for three hours, skimming it when necessary. To add to the taste, put in "mirepoix" which has not been browned and made without lard. This is not absolutely necessary. Strain the sauce and put it aside. In a large saucepan put 1½ quarts of cream, ½ pint of the juice or water in which mushrooms have been cooked, add a little Madeira wine and a pinch of nutmeg. Whip all together and thicken over a good fire.

Strain through muslin and beat it until cold. Set aside for use when needed. This receipt is not as complicated as it may seem. The quantities given may be greatly reduced and only enough made for the immediate use of two persons.



A TASTEFUL WAY TO SERVE APPLE SALAD

SAUCE ESPANGOLI, SPANISH SAUCE.

In a deep saucepan melt 300 grammes of butter or good grease with 400 grammes of flour. Let it get slightly brown then add five quarts of beef or veal stock. Boil for four hours on the back of the stove. When it starts to boil add this mirepoix, which goes into all the sauces and is a famous French seasoning:

MIREPOIX.

One big carrot, 2 onions, medium size, 2 pieces of celery, 1 sprig of thyme, parsley, 2 laurel leaves, pepper grains, half pound of bacon or smoked lard. Cut the lard, onions, carrots and celery into small pieces. Place a little butter in a saucepan, put in the lard or bacon, let it melt, add the other ingredients and brown them, then turn them into the sauce.

Strain the whole into a casserole and put it back on the fire next day with 1½ quarts of tomato juice and 1½ quarts of soup stock. Bring it to the boiling point and let it simmer for three hours. Skim frequently. Pass it through a Chinese strainer and then through muslin. Put it in a bowl or jar and stir until it is cold. Use when needed. Many cooks make these sauces in a few hours and wonder why the result is not what it should be. Slow, careful preparation is needed to make a perfect sauce. The more care a cook takes the better the result.

The two illustrations today give an idea of several dishes tastefully. The one shows the popular apple salad in its own apple dish, the other is

LOBSTER SAUTE WITH RICE.

Three boiled lobsters weighing about two pounds apiece. Chop them up, leaving the claws, remove the meat. Season the meat with salt and pepper and place in a pan with 3 ounces of butter and three soup spoonsful of olive oil, which should be heated before the lobster is put in. Let them get a good color. Turn the contents of the pan out on a platter and put it back on the fire with three eschallotes chopped fine and the lobster, over which has been poured a glass of brandy. Light the brandy.

For each person take half a glass of white wine, 1 glass of fish stock, 1 spoonful of tomato puree, and half pint of half glace which is the sauce espagnole, moistened with Madeira.

Cook from 25 to 20 minutes.

Arrange the lobster cutting in small squares. Strain the sauce through muslin and add butter and chopped herbs. Heat the lobster claws and place in the centre of a rice mould with the rest of the lobster and sauce. The rice should be cooked in salt water.

The Men Cooks of Belleville

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

When we cooked turkey down to a brown,
The women kept turnin' our cookin' down;
We don't care if it made them frown,
They gotta quit turnin' our cookin' down.

IF the Men's League of the Reformed Church of Belleville, N. J., needs a war cry, they have it. They assuredly need something that makes a noise to drown the groans that followed their attempt one night recently to show their superiority to women.

Such an attempt always ends disastrously. But some men somewhere ever so often insist on making it.

It was made by the Men's League of the Reformed Church of Belleville in giving a church supper. One or two of these men had on some great occasion in their past risen to the heights of frying an egg. Others had mixed coffee grains and water and when the mixture had been cleared and settled by Time they pointed to the memory as a Great Achievement.

With masculine scorn they said that all cooking consisted of was mixing things up, and putting them in the oven. They could mix, and there is no combination lock on oven doors. "Therefore," they said, "we can cook as well as women."

The members of the Men's League of the Reformed Church of Belleville, New Jersey, blew their horns last week to call attention to eggs fried, and coffee boiled in their past.

"We can cook," they blew in high and low keys, "and we can cook better than the women."

Following this boast, they announced a church supper to be prepared by men, to be cooked by men, and to be served by men.

"Not a woman's hand in the pie," they proclaimed, and the women, glad of a chance to keep their hands out, though they feared the consequences, stayed meekly at home till the supper was served.

The women went to the supper to scoff, but stayed to eat. The men had seemingly made their boasts good, and as they passed the turkey, cranberry sauce, plum pudding and coffee, all of which they had prepared, they swelled with such satisfaction they looked like pouter pigeons in waiter's attire.

It was well they blew their horns before the dinner. It is always wise for a man to boast of his supremacy to woman before the test.

After dinner there wasn't enough wind left in these boasters to have made a squeak with a penny whistle. For something went in their cooking that should have been left out. Or something was left out that should have gone in.

It is immaterial which. The important thing is that for the next twenty-four hours every doctor in Belleville was busy, and every patron of the dinner wore a mustard plaster on his or her stomach that blistered and burned.

"Ptomaines," whispered the wise men, making out their bills.

"The carelessness of those men," moaned the women.

And the men who got the dinner have made no explanation, being occupied in looking around for some woman on whom to place the blame. Like Adam of old they will declare that "She did it," but so far, owing to their vigilance in barring out the women, have been unable to find the "She."

That they will find her there is no doubt. This is a search in which man engages with regularity and in which he never fails.

Fine Figuring

JOSEPH CHOATE, apropos of a suit for rather exorbitant damages, said at a dinner: "We are very prone to reckon up our damages like Brownlow, who was claiming burglary insurance on a stolen umbrella.

"'Now, let me see,' said Browning to himself. 'The umbrella cost originally $8. It was recovered twice at $3 a time—that makes $14. I got a new stick put in it in 1904—$2.50—that makes $16.50. And three new ribs—$1.25—or $17.75 in all. I'll put in a claim for $17.75 immediately.'"

The Latest Dances and How to Dance Them

By Maurice, the Cabaret Artist——No. 2—The Turkey Trot

The accompanying illustrations show Maurice and his partner, Florence Walton, in two positions of the Turkey trot.

Contrary to the general belief, many graceful poses are introduced into this dance, as is shown in the picture where Maurice is standing behind his partner holding her arms out at full length.

In this position they can do the "rock," the "bend" or the "slide" and the regular two-step.

The other picture shows a position in one of the "slides."

By MAURICE

I HATE to dispel an illusion, but I must tell you that the famous Turkey Trot, the Grizzly Bear and most of the sensational dances which are the vogue today are variations of the famous Matcheech, the Apache dance which I did in Paris several years ago and which created such a furor, ragtime and African dances.

The Turkey Trot is hard to describe. No two people dance it quite alike, and I vary my own steps according to the music to which I am dancing it.

The main thing about the Turkey Trot is that it is danced to two-step time and that you must get the sidewise, rocking movement of the body.

This is not the suggestive movement of the Andalusian dances or even of the "rag" dances, but a frank, boisterous demonstration of high spirits and fun.

The Turkey Trot, as it is danced in society, is funny and not vulgar. The dancers take it as a huge joke, and while it will never rank high as an exhibition of elegant dancing, except by the people who have been carefully taught and drilled, it is less stilted than any other dance and consequently young people who like to romp over the ballroom floor will continue the Turkey Trot or do the San Francisco Slide despite everything that is said against it.

In dancing the Turkey Trot you can begin with the ordinary two-step and then with the change in the music go over to the "rock." If a good "rag" is played in syncopated time, keep the rhythm alternating with a hunch of the shoulders and the rock of the body.

The partners should bend as far to the side as possible, the limbs are held stiff and the feet are stamped flat on to the floor, bending first to one side then to the other, and bending, of course, to the side on which the foot is on the ground while the other foot is in the air, this leg being held perfectly stiff.

During this rocking the male dancer holds his partner closely to him, having both arms around her. She places both hands on his shoulders. The change from one "rock" to other steps is always done by means of a few bars danced in the ordinary two-step.

Another Turkey Trot step: The partners change from the ordinary dancing position by facing the same way, hands clasped in front; he holds her around the waist; she has one hand on his shoulder. Now they do the same "rock," bending forward and back, ending with a pause [illegible] music and a graceful pose. The dancer catches his partner around the waist; she leans back as far as possible, arms spread out. This pose need not be acrobatic, though it sounds as if it were. It can be graceful and artistic, and so can all the rest of the Turkey Trot for that matter; it depends entirely on the dancers.

In bending and sliding you can be as graceful as you would be in any other dance.

On the other hand, you can dance it in an eccentric way and be awkward or funny, if you can do that. Some people are naturally funny, and it doesn't much matter what they do, you can't teach them to be elegant, because they look comic no matter how hard they try. For such people, and there are girls as well as men of that type, these new dances prove irresistible, and the dancers themselves always are funny and make a "hit."

But you must know you're really funny to dance in an eccentric manner. If you are not, some kind friend will make a few "pleasant" remarks and you will be branded as "vulgar" instead.

There is just a small step between the two in these dances. Of course, facial expression plays a great part in dancing, and that is another thing that shouldn't be overdone.

When you dance the Turkey Trot don't remember what you've heard about it. It is not as bad as it's painted. It can be danced in a jolly, fun-making sort of way, and if you put any suggestions into it, that is your matter and doesn't belong in the dance by rights.

There is nothing especially alluring about a turkey hopping around, is there? And the Turkey Trot is a kind of human imitation of the thanksgiving emblem. If you have good music and a good partner, the dance goes off as if one were inspired.

I have seen it danced when it was quite beautiful—when the dancers were well trained, good looking young men and women, who danced in an elegant, well-bred sort of way. One can slide and rock and bend, stamp and shuffle, without being inelegant. It all depends on how you hold yourself.

When the Turkey Trot is danced to "rag" music the feet are dragged over the floor and more of the regular cake-walk shuffle is put into it.

Another position in the Turkey Trot shows the man standing behind the girl, holding her [illegible] which are held out at arm's length. In this position they can do the "rock," the "bend" or slide and the regular two-step.

The slide consists in a low dip with the knees bent and a long glide, which becomes more and more acrobatic as the dancers get enthusiastic. Both partners should face the same way. I do a slide with my dancing partner in which each of us slides or glides in opposite directions, but this is naturally difficult to do gracefully and is more for the stage than the ballroom.

One can slide to the right, left, forward or back. The main thing is to keep exactly in time, and either be in such close sympathy with one's partner that you instinctively know what he or she is going to do or know the music and decide on the steps beforehand.

In most of the modern dance music written for the trot the slides and rocks are clearly indicated by the tunes and the character of the music.

I.—THE SUCCESS OF A FOUL PLOT.

Having cut the rope holding the basket in which Claude was carrying him away from the revengeful Chinese, Desmond rests safely upon the edge of the chasm, while Hero Claude and Rosamond go hurtling down over the cliff. For the time the foul plot of the villain has resulted in the complete confusion of poetic justice.

II.—A HERO TO THE LAST.

Even while falling to what seems certain death, Claude Eclaire does not forget his beautiful sweetheart, Rosamond. He tries to hold up the basket in which he had been bearing her away from the Chinese, so that the fall may be somewhat broken. Claude never forgets his duty as a hero.

III.—THE PILE OF RICE.

To the joy of Claude he sees below him a pile of rice, which some thrifty Chinese farmer has made ready for shipment to market. At other times rice would suggest a wedding to Claude, but now he sees in it a source of safety. The yielding grain will break his fall and he may escape.

IV.—THE PLOT THAT FAILED.

Into the pile of rice drop Rosamond and Claude. As soon as they recover from the shock they find that they are uninjured. Desmond's plot to put them out of the way has failed and the lovers are safe from his vengeance for the time at least. Even with grains of rice down his neck, Claude feels grateful to the cereal.

V.—STOP, THIEF!

As Claude and Rosamond are trying to free themselves from the pile of rice, they are observed by the Chinese farmer, who not unnaturally concludes, when he sees the basket, that our hero and heroine are mere sneak thieves trying to get away with his property. Appearances are indeed deceptive.

VI.—TO THE FORBIDDEN CITY.

To the unconcealed joy of Desmond, he sees Claude, peerless hero, and Rosamond, proud beauty, being led away by the angry Chinese, who intend to put their captives into the Forbidden City, from which no white person has ever returned alive. For the adventures of the lovers there, see Monday's pictures.

"[illegible] what you think of Lord Ellerdine [illegible] is an old friend, isn't he?"

"Yes," said Peggy, fervently, "a very dear old friend."

"Do you think that Lord Ellerdine and Lady Attwill believed that your trip to Paris was the result of an accident?"

"How can I tell?" murmured Peggy. She was breathing quickly and the color that the early excitement had brought to her cheeks was gone, leaving them [illegible]

"Yes, and I loathed myself for it," cried Peggy, with sudden giving way to emotion.

"It was possibly the first time you had deceived your husband?" suggested her tormentor, sarcastically.

After a short pause the answer came—a faint, "Yes."

Sir Robert was an adept at playing with human emotions, and he saw that in a few minutes the girl would break down. [illegible] so he turned to a different line of question- [illegible] his voice dropped back to a matter-of-fact level. Peggy instantly noticed the change and rapidly recovered her mental balance.

"Now, you arrived at the hotel under the impression that your visit to Paris was the result of an accident?" he questioned.

"Yes."

"You supped in your room with Mr. Collingwood?"

"Yes." Her answers came almost eagerly in her belief that the strain was over.

"At what time did you sup?"

"About 10 or 10:15 o'clock."

"And what did you do after supper? I suppose you finished about 11 o'clock?"

"I suppose so."

"Well, what did you do," he repeated. "The table was not cleared until 12:30 o'clock, when you went to bed. That is so, isn't it?"

To Be Continued Monday.

An Extra-Terrestrial Dream

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Last night I had a curious dream which impressed me so vividly that I hasten to write it down for the possible entertainment of those who feel an interest in such occult things.

My dream opened with the sound of a [illegible] strange, raucous laughter, which [illegible] all about me. Then I perceived that I was in the midst of a great gathering of personages whom I could not at first clearly discern, although they were assembled under the open sky.

Presently the laughing ceased and was followed by a single queer, quacking voice, which appeared to come from the mouth of some one who was recounting his adventures. Immediately the speaker became clearly visible to me, and, to my amazement, I saw that it was a huge bird, shaped somewhat like a pelican, and standing very upright, in a most comical attitude, with its wings set akimbo on its hips and a sarcastic smile on its face, which was reflected sympathetically on the countenances of its circle of listeners, who also now became visible, and who were likewise birds, differing from the first only by variations of stature and [illegible] of color on their plumage [illegible]

[illegible] what it was saying when I first [illegible] tuned his voice:

"The next place at which I arrived was the planet Earth, which you all know is [illegible] the same size as our world. I expected to find something interesting on the Earth, and I was not disappointed, although what I saw was not at all what I had anticipated. You will hardly believe me, but it's a fact that I found that planet governed by a race of two-legged ground animals, bearing no little resemblance, except that they were larger, to our ordinary homos, which make such excellent ragouts in the hunting season.

"These absurd, wingless beings are very intelligent (laughter). Yes, I am not fooling you; they are really very intelligent, almost as much so as ourselves (Incredulous quacks and laughter.) They have invented ways of getting about more rapidly on the ground, and I found that the greatest speed they have been able to achieve is a mile a minute! And they call that fast. (Loud, derisive laughter.)

"They seem to appreciate their disadvantage in being thus tied down to the ground—for which there is, perhaps, some excuse in the astonishing lightness of the air they breathe—and they make the most curious efforts to get above it. It would split your sides with merriment to watch [illegible] Some of them get up a little way with what they call 'balloons,' which [illegible] to be the inflated bladders of enormous fish, and there they float about [illegible] fashion at the mercy of the wind.

"Others glide upward with things they [illegible] which circle slowly [illegible] pitching and twisting, [illegible] our infants taking their first lessons in flying. Frequently they actually fall and break their necks. (Great [illegible])

"But now I have a surprise for you. These featherless absurdities really believe that they are the favorite creatures of the Almighty; that their world is the only one possessing intelligence, and that our planet has too much air and too much sunshine to be habitable! (Uproar [illegible] and squeaks like catcalls.)

At this point, flushing with indignation, I stepped forward and began:

"I beg your pardon, but let me tell you——"

Before I could add another word a deafening croak overwhelmed me, and the whole [illegible] golden wings [illegible] disappeared [illegible] this morning I am [illegible] I have dreamed [illegible] on Venus.

"What was it he left, then?"

"Five children."

BIG DAY FOR SALES AT MOTOR TRUCK SHOW

By J. C. KERRISON.

There is no lagging in the interest for the Commercial Truck Show at Mechanics Building, on the contrary, greater attention is manifested than ever. While today marks the third full day of the show, bigger throngs are in evidence than were present on any of the preceding days.

Like a giant magnet, the Truck Show has drawn visitors from all over New England today, intent on inspecting the greatest collection of motor trucks ever assembled under one roof.

The visitors to Mechanics Building today include farmers, market gardeners, lumbermen and even municipal authorities, who are taking advantage of the opportunity to learn the true worth of the power wagon.

As a result of the class of visitors today, this is the busiest one of all to the dealers. Salesmen are conspicuous at all the booths, jotting down the names of purchasers or prospective ones. Therefore, from the exhibitors' standpoint, this is the greatest day of any.

Great Purchasing Crowd

While the crowd is larger than usual, 90 per cent. of those in attendance today have been drawn to the building by something other than idle curiosity, or with a desire to get a glimpse of the surroundings.

Today's throng is a critical one and it is very noticeable, for at every booth are gathered groups of men, getting at the very foundation of things, with the purpose of purchasing.

Although sales have been recorded on every day of the show since the opening night, this is the banner day in that respect. Less than fifteen minutes after the doors were opened the first sale of the day was reported.

So many sales have been made today, that without a doubt every truck in the building will be sold before the show closes next Wednesday night.

This has been unprecedented in truck shows and stamps the present exhibition as the greatest of its kind ever held in this country.

New Era of Power Wagons.

Judging from the way in which merchant manufacturer and representatives of all branches of trade are taking to the motor wagon, transportation in New England is to be revolutionized during the coming year. More trucks will be seen scooting about the city and suburbs than ever before, so that the year 1912 is apt to be known as the era of the power wagon.

To judge by the trucks that the manufacturers are offering the vehicle of three to five tons capacity appears to be the one which is best suited to give the most satisfactory results in motor trucks.

They are not what are ordinarily termed delivery wagons, but are designed for work on through runs, carrying capacity loads from point to point without stops.

These are what may be termed heavy duty trucks and the majority of manufacturers are building this type rather than the smaller vehicles.

As a rule they are designed for bulky goods, in which the haulage cost is a larger item in proportion to the value than in less bulky freight.

Action Displays.

Coal, lumber, crushed stone and sand are examples of materials which may be hauled by motor trucks with a large percentage of saving in the transportation cost.

In referring to the recent Pleasure Car Show, it was stated that of all the exhibits, those which attracted the most attention, were the ones in which the visitors can see the wheels go round.

Interest in the special display of power elevating and dumping trucks of the Peerless Motor Car Company increases from day to day, and today found the Peerless exhibit the most congested place in the building.

While the wheels of the Peerless trucks "do not go round," the dumping bodies are raised and lowered with a steadiness which indicates great power and stability.

These moving bodies are the magnets which attract crowds of interested visitors, a great many of whom are prospective purchasers of dumping trucks for coal, crushed stone or gravel, and their interest presages a largely increased business in Peerless trucks the coming season.

Special Service "Bus."

The General Motor Truck Company's exhibit at the show offers a novelty that attracts unusual attention. It is an English coach body bus with electric power. Classy lines, beautiful upholstery and roominess made it a distinct hit at the New York show.

It will comfortably seat twelve people, three or four on the upper coaching seat and two on the driver's seat. It is capable of attaining a speed of twelve miles an hour and with its Edison batteries will run forty-five miles on each charge.

There is a distinct demand for such a service bus, not only for coaching, but for theatre and dinner parties, because it has all the elements of the private coach and yet can seat twelve people comfortably.

For instance, it could carry an entire dinner party rather than [illegible] would be particularly suitable for hotel equipment.

Notes of the Motor Show

C. G. Hubbs of the United States Tire Company spent [illegible] in town at the show looking over the situation with L. H. Kidder, the local manager.

* * *

Among the officials of the Locomobile Company who are in attendance at the show are A. W. Robinson, truck sales manager; H. S. Schulz, chief engineer and designer, and Messrs. Swan and Neefuss.

* * *

The New England section of the National Electric Light Association held its weekly dinner yesterday and listened to an interesting address on the adaptability of the electric vehicle in New England given by W. P. Kennedy.

* * *

* * *

H. A. Goddard, sales manager, and Treasurer Lamb, of the Gramm Motor Truck Company, are two of the most pleased men at the show because of the big hit that truck has made here, which is attested to by the large number of sales closed since the show opened. The sold signs have been placed on several of the trucks in the Gramm exhibit. A model two-ton stake body truck has been sold to John M. Peck of Seekonk, and a two-ton truck with open express body to the Haverhill Cement Stone Company. Four one-ton trucks with express bodies have been sold to purchasers in Salem, Pittsfield and Haverhill.

* * *

The lost has been found. The two Koehler wagons which were delayed in [illegible] have arrived at Mechanics Building and were immediately put on exhibit [illegible] booths. The show would have been minus one of its features without these two handsome and staunch appearing motor wagons on view. The Koehler salesmen are now ready to handle the rush to inspect the cars, which no doubt will keep them busy until the show closes.

* * *

The Ford delivery car that is on exhibition in Mechanics Building has already established a name for itself, as it is being used extensively by a number of large business houses where wagons of 750 pounds merchandise capacity are called for. The houses where the Fords are most extensively used are department stores, wholesalers and jobbers and telephone and electric light companies.

* * *

J. M. Linscott of the Linscott Motor Company is showing some very attractive body types of the Reo light delivery wagon and the Reo truck. The delivery wagon has a capacity for 500 pounds and the truck will easily shoulder a load of 1,500 pounds. These commercial vehicles are admirably suited for suburban and city deliveries of all kinds.

* * *

The Grant Motor Truck Company is the latest to be formed here and it means the addition to another manufacturing plant in the State, as the factory and offices are located at Cambridge. Harry F. Grant, well known as the only driver who ever won [illegible] race twice, is the man [illegible] company [illegible] formed and [illegible] of it with Frank S. Coriew as sales manager. Mr. Coriew has been identified with the motor industry for [illegible] years and is well known here.

* * *

A varied line of trucks is included in the [illegible] by Manager Hathaway of the White Company, including the full line of chasses, ranging from five tons through three tons, ton and one-half and [illegible] capacities. The five-ton and three-ton heavy trucks have steel wheels and double chain drive, while the smaller [illegible] drive. The motor in the five-ton size is of forty horsepower while in the others the thirty horsepower motor is employed. In addition to the full line of chasses there is a five ton all-steel dumping truck, which is one of the features of the show.

* * *

In addition a 1,500-pound wagon built for the National Shawmut Bank and a standard city police patrol wagon are included in the exhibit.

* * *

"The newest addition to the line of Firestone truck tires are primarily heavy service tires," said T. J. Glenn, of the local Firestone branch. "They are built to cut down tire upkeep on heavy trucks and to increase the popularity of that class of vehicle, which is now becoming such an essential to the delivery system of jobbers, brewers, manufacturers, etc.

"One of the new line is the hard base channel type. This tire has no side wires or [illegible] but its hard base is vulcanized in a channel with saw tooth corrugations ensuring a firm anchorage. The resilient tread is united to the hard base by vulcanization."

* * *

That the excessive heat endured in the South most of the year around is the biggest factor in the rapid adoption of motor trucks there is the word of George L. Sullivan, traveling representative of the Alco, who has just completed an 11,000-mile trip through the West and Southwest.

"Business men in the warmer climates realize," says Mr. Sullivan, "that horses there are put at an even greater disadvantage than otherwise on account of the heat. It is not surprising, therefore, that [illegible] business [illegible] in a receptive [illegible] toward the motor truck."

Mr. Sullivan reports business conditions [illegible] in the sections of the country he covered.

* * *

The Dayton three-ton truck and the Federal one-ton truck seem to be most in demand at the Whitten-Gilmore exhibit. E. A. Gilmore states he has a number of prospects who are figuring on these trucks who will probably buy before the show closes. A three-ton Dayton has been sold to C. E. Hall & Son of Revere.

BERLE CRITIC OF BABY TALK

"A baby can just as well say locomotive as 'choo-choo,'" according to the Rev A. A. Berle, who has two remarkably bright children of his own, a boy and girl.

Addressing the Metaphysical Club, at No. 30 Huntington avenue, on "The School in the Home," Dr. Berle, who is a professor at Tufts College, condemned the method employed in teaching William J. Sidis, the boy prodigy and son of Professor Boris Sidis of Harvard. Dr. Berle advocated what he termed "the extensive or nutritive method as opposed to the dynamic method, with its tremendously intensive result." Illustrated by Sidis.

"I don't believe much in this clap-trap about heredity. God isn't what we think he is if he ties us to a lot of ghosts. No one is a playhouse for his ancestors to play in," said Dr. Berle.

"The most important period, after you are once born, is early babyhood. Everyone rubs the little body and pulls the limbs of a baby to make it grow physically, yet the minute you try to develop its brain people hold up their hands in horror.

"Children should be taught that nothing happens by accident—that we live in a world of law. They can be taught scientific principles at the age of three and words of five syllables as soon as it can talk."

AT THE
HENRY F. MILLER
PIANO WAREROOMS
395 BOYLSTON ST.

IN ADDITION TO our own Henry F. Miller Pianos, we show a splendid line of other makes—pianos from some of the most successful factories in the country, and marked at

$125, $150, $175, $190, $225, $240, $255, $265, $275 and $300

On Easy Terms, $10 Down and $5 per Month

COMPARE THESE PIANOS with the so-called $350 or $400 pianos offered in "Piano Clubs," "Certificate Sales" or "Guessing Contests." You will be surprised at the great superiority of our offerings.

ANOTHER THING—Do not sit at home and be "canvassed." We are told that one house, employing about 30 "canvassers" hereabouts, admits that their canvassing system increases the selling expense of each piano about $100. You can probably save that amount by visiting the different warerooms yourself. You will find our pianos the most attractive at the prices marked and our terms the easiest no matter how much the other dealer "cuts" (?) his prices. At our warerooms the humblest buyer gets as much as the wisest. You can prove this by investigating in person.

Established 1863—Always Reliable

The New Haven Railroad Seeks to Stay the Coming of the Grand Trunk With Tears for the Widow and Orphan—How Much Has Mr. Mellen Considered Them in the Past?

At the State House and in the lobbies of the hotels the minions of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad are whispering in the ears of the members of the Legislature an argument against the coming of the Grand Trunk which ought to make Mr. Mellen blush.

This is their whispered lament: The stocks and bonds of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven Railroad to the value of hundreds of thousands of dollars are held by our savings banks and our widows and orphans. Therefore, shall we bring into the New England field a powerful railroad like the Grand Trunk to reduce the profits of our Massachusetts railroads and thus to reduce the value of these railroad securities held by our women and children and their savings banks?

Mr. Mellen and his masters in New York are not the first freebooters in high finance who have made the widow and the orphan and their savings institutions their own cowardly cover when Nemesis pressed hard on their track. It is only then that these gentlemen consider the widows and orphans.

These widows and orphans and their savings banks have held stocks and bonds in the New York, New Haven & Hartford and in the Boston & Maine ever since they came into existence. They have held them ever since Mr. Mellen and his masters in New York controlled the New Haven road.

But how much consideration have these gentlemen shown them when they were carrying out their own schemes of monopolistic aggrandizement?

When the funds of the savings banks and of the widows and orphans were invested in the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad they were invested in a RAILROAD corporation having certain defined powers and certain limited operations, involving a character of risk that, when honestly managed, had come almost to be negligible in an established railroad.

How much did Mr. Mellen and his coadjutors consider the widows and orphans and the savings banks that held the New Haven securities when they began to change the character of their enterprise from a railroad to a holding company, and the character of the risk by buying up gas companies and power companies and electric light companies and street railway companies and express companies, paying for them millions of dollars more than they were worth?

How much did they consider the widows and orphans and the savings banks when they invested in the New England Navigation Company at an annual loss of nearly one-half a million every year?

How much were they considering the widows and orphans and savings banks when they bought up electric railways involving a loss of nearly two million, one hundred thousand dollars a year?

How much were they considering the widows and orphans and the savings banks when they bought control of the Boston & Maine at an annual loss of more than half a million?

How much are they now considering the widows and orphans who hold their stocks and bonds, and the savings banks, when they offer to spend five millions in a doubtful investment in street railway extensions among the Berkshire hills as a bribe to obtain the votes of western representatives in order to complete their monopoly of street railways west of Worcester?

How much did they consider the widows and orphans and savings banks which held the securities of the New Haven when they took the New Haven Railroad at a time when its stock was worth two hundred and forty dollars a share and diverted its assets from legitimate railroad enterprises to all these collateral investments at such losses that the stock of the New Haven has fallen from two hundred and forty to one hundred and thirty-eight in the market quotations, and a responsible New York financial journal has declared it to be worth not over fifty-six dollars a share, if its real earning power is considered and if the railroad did not pay dividends out of capital?

How much were they considering the widows and orphans when, after they took control of the Boston & Maine Railroad, its stock fell from one hundred and ninety-five to ninety-nine dollars a share, with grief and suffering in hundreds of New England families following in the wake of its fall—families which had invested all their little savings in this old and stable railroad?

How much did they consider the widows and orphans and the savings banks when they undertook to make the bonds of the Boston Holding Company a savings bank investment?

With infinite care the Commonwealth has sought to make our savings banks the absolutely safe depositories of the little savings of the people. One of the means adopted for securing safety was to prohibit a savings bank from investing its money in certain things. Among those things prohibited were the securities of a railroad which had not paid five per cent. dividends for the last five successive years.

The Boston Holding Company was not a railroad which had been paying five per cent. dividends for five years. Its income wholly depended upon the stock of the Boston & Maine, and the condition of the Boston & Maine was known to the managers of the New Haven when they asked that the Holding Company's bonds be made a savings bank investment. The dividends of the Boston & Maine stock have been falling, and it is doubtful if today the Boston & Maine is earning two per cent. on its stock. Yet upon such a tottering foundation as this the New Haven Railroad sought to make their Holding Company a savings bank investment.

How much are they now considering the widows and orphans by undermanning their trains against the protest of their men, endangering life and property and delaying transportation?

These were all occasions when the widows and orphans were made to lose without any compensating advantage to the community.

HOW THEY MUST LOVE THE WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

But if the Grand Trunk did take away some of the New Haven's business, it is conceded that it would be to the general advantage of the community, not because the New Haven lost business, but because the Grand Trunk was bringing that business to us under more favorable conditions than the New Haven could bring it.

The difficulty with the New Haven is that it wants, not merely its fair share, but the whole of New England business. It is demanding the fruits of its monopoly.

We wonder whether a few gentlemen on the Railroad Committee seriously believe that they can prevent the coming of this great railroad from the North, called here by the Governor and the Legislature itself, by the City of Boston, by the Chamber of Commerce, by the Real Estate Exchange, by the Massachusetts Board of Trade and by every man of note in the community and by a petition of one hundred thousand signers.

Shall the North and South Poles Be Burdened with the Names of Kings?

Such Titles as "King Haakon VII. Plateau" and "King Edward VII. Land" Bestowed by Patriotic Explorers Dampen the Enthusiasm of Their Admirers.

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE whole world is under obligation to brave men who, like Amundsen, "descry new lands and regions on her spotty globe." We all like to read about their exploits, and to pay honor to their dauntless courage. But it must be said that some of the names that they bestow tend to damp the enthusiasm of the reader and dim the colors which his imagination would fain spread over those strange new lands.

Think of calling the vast and wonderful ice-blanketed and storm-swept expanse in the midst of which lies the southern pole of the earth's mighty axis "King Haakon VII. Plateau." Why should any king's name be attached to it? One could have understood "New Norway," and it would have been easy to pronounce. Perhaps King Haakon's name was bestowed as a counterblance to that other specimen of royal nomenclature in the Antarctic, "King Edward VII. Land." If we must have personal names those of the actual discoverers would be preferable.

Then consider such names as "Dom Pedro Christopher Sena Mountain," "Oscar Wisting's Peak," "Severre Hassel's Peak," "Olaf Bjaaland's Peak." What do such names say to the imagination? Sir James Ross set the proper fashion when, years ago, he named the first two great Antarctic peaks ever seen by man—at least, in our age of the world—Mt. Erebus and Mt. Terror. All of these strange features of the globe must have some characteristics by which they could be designated, and which would tend to make a picture of them in the mind of the reader.

Everybody understands the "Rocky Mountains.' The name Himalayas means "The Abode of Snow." The Pamirs are "The Roof of the World." The Aztecs called Popocatepetl "The Mountain that Smokes," and Ixtaccihuatl, "The White Woman."

The ancients used their imagination and did not name wonderful features of the globe after kings. The red men in America called rivers and mountains by names indicating their characteristics. Mississippi means "The Father of Waters," Niagara, "The Thunder of Waters." They did not dream of attaching the names of petty chiefs or of favorite friends to the marvels of nature.

Galileo soon repented of his naming the satellites of Jupiter "The Medicean Stars," especially after he received a letter from the French court saying: "In case you discover any other fine star call it by the name of the Great Star of France, and rather by his proper name, Henri, than by the family name, Bourbon."

But our explorers are given to maps of the polar regions, both North and South, the aspect of huge advertising boards on which we read, in display type, the names of persons seeking a kind of second-hand immortality.

But Amundsen has partly redeemed the fame of his Norwegian ancestors' imagination by calling that mysterious region where his feet broke through "empty casks" of ice, that sounded ominously hollow, and where his sledges bumped over slippery hummocks, "The Devil's Dancing Room." There is a name that will stick; let his Satanic Majesty get such satisfaction out of it as he can!

The City of Boston Should Not Lead the Way in Asking Exceptions to the Law

The Committee on Cities has reported a bill allowing the City of Boston to erect an office building for its use on the site of the old Court House, much higher than the limit now allowed by law.

This is extremely undesirable legislation on many grounds. Fire hazards, the public health, the beauty of the city in restricted districts, arising from symetrical development, all require that there should be no exception to the law.

The law was long discussed and hard fought, and was decided to be in the public interest. If the City of Boston can become an exception to one of its own laws, some powerful aggregation of capital, desiring to erect a large building, may be the next successful petitioner.

If public sentiment as shown by tax payers, architects and persons interested in the development and beauty of Boston count for anything the proposed plan is to be condemned, for sentiment is nearly unanimous against the proposed change.

The suggested change is unwise and unfair and former Governor John D. Long well expressed the reason for opposition when he said that no law would be permanent if mere convenience and a desire to save money were sufficient to make exceptions in special cases.

Either all limit ought to be abolished or for the good of Boston, the law should be the same for all in the restricted district. The Legislature would do well to stop a flood of petitions in coming years by disapproving of the proposed change.

Mistaken Idea of Child's Joy —AND— Happiest Time of Woman's Life

By DOROTHY DIX

A YOUNG girl asks me what is the happiest time of a woman's life.

It is impossible to answer this question definitely, or to even hazard a guess as to whether age or youth is more likely to be the halcyon time of life.

Happiness depends upon condition and circumstances, and it varies with each individual.

There are women who have hard and bitter youths, and beautiful and lovely old ages, and there are others whose early years are joyous and their last years filled with tears and sorrow.

But what is the happiest time of life for a woman? Most people would answer childhood. We always associate childhood with joy, and are apt to believe that any fairly well-taken-care-of boy or girl is at the happiest hour of life.

I think that childhood is one of the most miserable times of life because in it one has neither perspective nor philosophy.

Every little disappointment is a blighting tragedy.

Everything that goes awry is a final catastrophe.

Every cross word a stab to the heart.

We See Things in Proper Proportion When Older.

Let it but rain so that one cannot go to a picnic, and one is plunged into the depths of a black despair, and feels that there is nothing else in life worth trying to live for. Let someone but make a jest of some little peculiarity, and one, if a child, endures all the shame and chagrin of unmerited disgrace.

After we get older we see things in their true proportion.

Trifles sink into their proper insignificance.

Little worries and disappointments no longer affect us.

We have learned that there is always tomorrow, and something coming by way of consolation.

Also, we acquire a certain insensibility to the pinpricks of existence.

Childhood has its radiant moments of acute joy, but none of us want to live it over again. Its sufferings were too poignant.

What is the happiest time of a woman's life?

Is it matronhood?

The altar is the beacon of every young girl's hopes.

It is the climax of every novel.

"And then they were married, and lived happily ever afterward," is the way all the fairy tales end.

Surely the woman who has married the man of her choice, who has a home, and a strong arm to protect her against the world, and who has nothing else to do but the beautiful work of making a home, has reached the golden hour of her life.

To a few women this is true, but to the great majority of women marriage brings only a shattering of ideals and a blasting disappointment.

The fond lover turns into the neglectful or grouchy husband.

The billing and cooing is superseded by growls over the butcher and grocer bill.

The thrill of romance dies down into the dull monotony of everyday life where it is a constant strain to make the ends meet between income and expenditure.

There's nothing particularly hilarious in the life of the average married woman. It is a gray fabric shot through with a few gold threads, but she'd never make a garment of it in which to clothe her soul when she wanted to celebrate her happiest time of life.

Some Are Happiest When the First Baby Comes.

To some women the happiest hour of life is when they first hold their new-born babes on their breast. That is a minute of rapture, pure and complete, that pays for all the other disappointments and sufferings of existence. And there are other golden hours that they spend with their little children that are more precious than they know until the time has passed. But even this happiness is clouded with anxiety, and dulled for many women by ceaseless labor until they are too tired to really sense its beauty.

There comes, also, the happiness of old age when a woman's work is done, and she sits with folded hands and quiet heart in the twilight.

For her the battle is over, the struggle ended, the wounds healed, but this happiness is the end.

It is what we hope for as a consolation, not what youth looks forward to in answer to its desire.

The consensus of opinion among women is that the happiest time in a woman's life is the little span of girlhood that lies between the schoolroom and the altar.

That is why mothers are so pathetically anxious to give their young daughters a good time, and to indulge them in every possible way.

People criticize the mother who turns her old frock in order that Mamie may have another party dress; who tiptoes past Mamie's door in order not to wake her of a morning when she goes down to cook breakfast for the family; who slaves over the sewing machine while Mamie is off playing tennis.

They do not know, as the woman does, that she is doing all she can to give Mamie her golden hour untarnished.

Realizes That Daughter Must Soon Face Facts.

She knows that life with its cares and burdens must soon press upon the young shoulders; that there are bound to be disillusionments for her; that the gilt will rub off of her gingerbread, and her fairy prince turn into an ordinary grocery clerk, and the rose-embowered cottage of her dreams become a two by four flat with her stewing over the range instead of gathering daisies in green fields, but between the school world and the hard work-a-day world lies this little strip of paradise—the young girl's world—which the mother is determined to secure her daughter if it is possible.

If you should ask any old woman what was the happiest time of her life, her face would grow suddenly young and tender and she would say, "When I was a girl with a girl's dreams."
